KAMAL PUSHP

Sahyog, Samarpan Aur Sanskar

A collection of inspiring stories about the selfless sacrifices made by Jana Sangh and BJP karyakartas

KAMAL PUSHP

Our journey with the BJP, where we have reached, be it in the states, local self-government bodies or at the Centre, it has not happened overnight. Five-five generations that have done tapasya from the time of the Jana Sangh; family after family was spent, only then was this organisation formed. Only then have we reached here. Lakhs of dedicated workers have laid down their lives for the BJP. Personal comfort, personal aspirations, personal happiness, personal ambitions, personal success - every worker of BJP has sacrificed these at the altar of serving the society and the country; for empowering the society and the country.

INTRODUCTION

It has been Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi's firm belief, one that he has spoken about on several occasions, that the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) has been built on the foundations of selfless service and the sacrifices from generations of karyakartas (party workers).

Right from its inception, the Jana Sangh (how the BJS is often recalled) and then the BJP in 1980, have been involved in shaping key moments of India's destiny over the decades. Be it upholding India's national integrity, fighting against the Emergency, instilling cultural pride, expanding the party or making development a mass movement fuelled by Jan Bhagidari or people's participation – the karyakartas have been the unstoppable force that refuses to back down, never gets tired and continues to stay inspired!

A common thread that connects every karyakarta of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) and the BJP is the priority given to serving Maa Bharti and her people. When it comes to service or seva, BJP and BJS karyakartas have never considered their own needs, aspirations and requirements before those of the nation, her people and the party.

Kamal Pushp (A Lotus flower) is an attempt to create an ever-expanding repository of stories and memories concerning Jana Sangh and BJP karyakartas with an aim to immortalise their selfless acts of courage and dedication for the generations to come. These karyakartas, who never sought the limelight, left no stone unturned in dedicating their mind, body and soul to the BJP; in many cases – till their last breath. Kamal Pushp is an attempt, modest as it may be, to recognise these countless sacrifices.

Such was the enthusiasm witnessed across the country, to share, discuss and submit stories of Karyakartas that our attempt, which started off as a module on the NaMo App, is now fructifying as an entire book based on the idea of Sahyog, Samarpan and Sanskar.

The book has been divided into two parts. Part One is about various movements and periods in our country's history, interwoven with select stories of contributions from karyakartas and how their selfless efforts shaped those movements. Part Two of the book is a repository of the contributions of each of the Kamal Pushps with details of their association with the party. While Part one attempts to capture the disparate stories with the Pan-India expanse of movements and ideas, Part Two is arranged according to the karyakarta's 'Karm Bhoomi' (the states where they were most active during their association) and further as per the domain (out of the aforementioned 14) where their contributions were most notable.

This book, for purposes of understanding the contributions of Kamal Pushps in conjunction with the evolving national life, has been envisioned keeping in mind 14 sectors spread across seven decades. These sectors cover important movements (such as the Shri Ram Janmabhoomi Movement, Goa Liberation Movement, Gau Raksha Andolan and the Kachchh Satyagraha); critical periods of Modern Indian history like the Emergency (Defending Democracy) and 1971 Bangladesh Liberation War; phenomenal ideas that shaped India (Ek Desh, Ek Vidhan and India First, Always First); issues like the party's expansion in remote areas

(The Lotus Blooms), its organisational values (A Party Of, By And For The Bharatiya Janata), the unshakable faith of karyakartas (Undaunted In The Face Of Violence), their consistent commitment for serving India (Warriors Of Independent India and Seva Hi Sangathan), and most importantly, the contributions of women in shaping the party (Nari Shakti For Sangathan Shakti).

While we have taken utmost care to showcase and present the stories of BJP and BJS karyakartas with minimal interference, it may be so that some states may not have some domains and some may have limited or no inclusions.

While this book may appear as a culmination of the Kamal Pushp movement started by Prime Minister Modi during the Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav, it is but a small beginning towards the Prime Minister's vision of immortalising ordinary Indians who performed extraordinary acts of courage, valour and devotion for Maa Bharati. We hope our efforts inspire the readers to remember, share and discuss unheard stories of karyakartas as well as freedom fighters who kept their nation above everything else. This book is a living testimony of the ideals of the BJP – Nation First, Party Next, Self-Last and the ideology espoused by Prime Minister Modi of India First.

PART - 1

Fight Against Emergency: Defending Democracy

In the wee hours of the night on June 26, 1975, police personnel knocked on the doors of Dr. Bharat Bhushan Goyal, a renowned Homeopathic doctor and city President of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) in Dehradun. An arrest warrant had been issued against him under the Maintenance of Internal Security Act (MISA), 1971. Dr Goyal was one of the thousands of BJS and Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) karyakartas (party workers) arrested across the country on that dreadful night.

On June 25, 1975, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi declared a national emergency under Article. 352 of the Indian constitution. Overnight, democratic processes had been suspended in the world's largest democracy. Executive power was concentrated within the Prime Minister's office and freedoms guaranteed by the constitution were suspended. Free speech was stifled through censorship and curbs on civil society to prevent any kind of dissent or disagreement. As PM Indira Gandhi trampled upon democratic ethos, civil liberties, and public institutions, BJS and RSS Karyakartas emerged as soldiers of democracy.

Shri Jaya Prakash Narain speaking in Delhi with Sh. Atal Bihari Vajpayee alongside him, barely a few hours prior to the declaration of emergency. - June, 1975

The Indira government decided to suppress dissent by political leaders, activists, and social workers. Within a day of the Emergency being announced, many prominent leaders of the BJS and RSS, including Atal Bihari Vajpayee and LK Advani, were arrested under the MISA. A few days after the announcement, the government decided to ban many social and political organisations, including the RSS. Subsequently, Sarsanghchalak Balasaheb Deoras was also arrested by the Police.[1]

Across the country, BJS Karyakartas had been vocal critics of Indira Gandhi's misrule and misguided policies. The imposition of the Emergency was preceded by multiple agitations against corruption, price rise, and law and order failure under Congress governments. BJS leaders who had led these agitations were specifically targeted by the Congress government during the Emergency. One such victim of government vendetta was Dr Khushiram Jeswani, a surgeon by profession and a prominent BJS leader in Kheda district of Gujarat. Between 1972-1975, Dr Jeswani participated in numerous protests against the state government. Consequently, he was imprisoned in Sabarmati Central Jail in Ahmedabad for almost one year during the Emergency.

Merely holding divergent views or being affiliated with the BJS or the Sangh was enough to be on the government's radar. Even the families of leaders had to face state persecution and arrests. This is encapsulated in the tale of the former Home Minister of Madhya Pradesh – Nar Narayan Singh from Surguja district (presently in Chhattisgarh). As soon as the Police started arresting individuals associated with the BJS and RSS, he discretely escaped to his childhood village in Bihar and subsequently Delhi and other locations. The Police tried to pressure him by persecuting his entire family and associates. Some relatives and his legal associate were arrested by the Police. The Emergency and arrests drove his family into financial distress and hunger. Realizing the adverse impact of his political activism on his family, Nar Narayan Singh surrendered to Ambikapur police, and was arrested under the MISA.

These aren't odd tales as more than 25,000 out of the approximately 30,000 people who were arrested under the MISA were either BJS or RSS workers.[2]

Many remained imprisoned for the entire 21-month period of the Emergency.

Leave aside fair trials or parole for detainees, the government did not even provide basic facilities and prisoner rights in the jails during the Emergency. There were numerous reports of police brutalities and custodial torture in prisons across the country. The chilling story of Vaikom Gopakumar reveals the plight of BJS and RSS Karyakartas during the Emergency. Gopakumar became a Pracharak (Full-time worker) at the tender age of 18 and dedicated his entire life to the Sangathan. He was barely 25 when he was arrested during the Emergency in 1975. Desperate to know the whereabouts of underground RSS and BJS leaders and curbing leaflet printing, the Police brutally tortured him for revealing information. Life was never the same for Gopakumar, after his detention during the Emergency, as the custodial torture led to lifelong medical ailments.

It is unfortunate that Gopakumar's tragic episode is not an exception. Close to a hundred Swayamsevaks (RSS members) lost their lives during the Emergency, mostly due to atrocities. This was the plight of ordinary citizens who dared to oppose the ruling government and demanded basic democratic rights.

Before the imposition of the Emergency in 1975, Jana Sangh leaders like Rajamata Vijaya Raje Scindia, Sh. Lal Krishna Advani and Sh. Atal Bihari Vajpayee were spearheading the nationwide agitation against the corrupt and oppressive policies of the Indira Gandhi-led Government

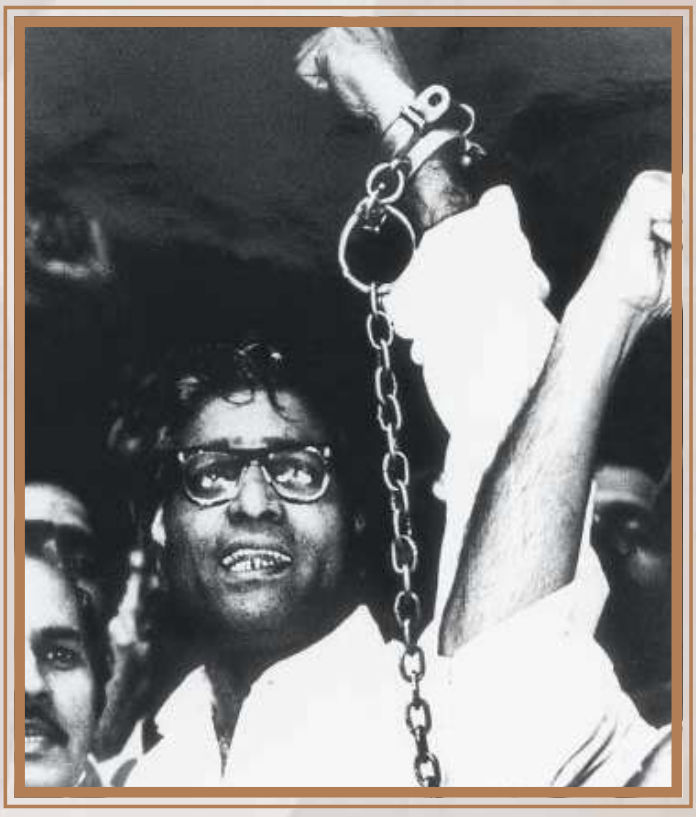
Sh. Atal Bihari Vajpayee and Sh. Madhukar Dattatraya 'Balasaheb' Deoras (the third Sarsanghchalak of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh) Participate in a session on "Struggle for Human rights by Indians Abroad" (New Delhi, 1977).

Neither the ban on the RSS nor the despicable treatment meted to protestors could break the resistance of BJS Karyakartas and their resolve to bring back democracy. This spirit of selfless sacrifice for the struggle is encapsulated in the story of Shiv Sampati Ram Kanaujia from Sonbhadra in Uttar Pradesh. He chose to bear custodial torture over revealing details of Sangh Shakhas (training camps) and Swayamsevaks. Similarly, in Madhya Pradesh (presently Chhattisgarh), Munshiram Thakur chose to remain imprisoned in the Raipur jail for the entire 21-month period of the Emergency over signing a formal apology.

Far from withdrawing their efforts, the brutal crackdown strengthened their resolve to fight against the Emergency. The struggle against the Emergency was led by the Lok Sangharsh Committee formed by Jayprakash Narayan. BJS leader and RSS pracharak Nanaji Deshmukh served as its General Secretary and oversaw the planning of the Satyagraha (passive, non-violent protest) against Emergency. After his arrest, the movement was led by another BJS leader and RSS pracharak Sunder Singh Bhandari. More than 1.3 lakh people did Satyagraha against the Emergency, including more than 1 lakh people affiliated with the RSS and the BJS.[3]

In many places across the country, RSS and BJS Karyakaratas became the first Satyagrahis against the Emergency. For instance, a young lawyer from Ballia and district office-bearer of the BJS, Satish Chandra Rai, led the first batch of Satyagrahis from his District in November 1975. He was immediately arrested and remained imprisoned under MISA till March 1977.

As the largest organisations among those that led the movement against the Emergency, the RSS and BJS provided the organisational backbone and resources for the movement. Due to massive restrictions on public assembly and communication, it was necessary to operate an underground movement against the Emergency. Across the country, the RSS and BJS seamlessly shifted their operations to underground networks. Many BJS leaders and RSS pracharaks went 'underground' to escape arrest and organise a mass movement to regain democracy.



During the Emergency, legal proceedings were initiated arbitrarily against popular leaders opposed to the ruling establishment. A similar case was slapped onto George Fernandes before he was incarcerated Innumerable Karyakartas and Swayamsevaks across the country, such as P. Sivaprakasam from Tamil Nadu and Niranjan Sharma from Delhi, went underground and played a pivotal role in the struggle. Though from very different parts of the country, both joined the BJS as teenagers in the mid-1960s. As office bearers in the local Mandal team in Chennai's Park Town Mandal and Delhi's Regarpura Mandal, respectively, they worked as underground activists during the Emergency and fulfilled all responsibilities assigned by the Sangathan. Even Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was perturbed by the efficiency and efficacy of Sangh's underground network.

During the Emergency, all communication platforms were essentially under government control. This meant that the transmission of ideas and information was extremely difficult without prior government approval. There were no platforms for expressing dissent or mobilising people for the restoration of democratic rights. Moreover, active press censorship meant that even newspapers published content 'approved' by the government. Numerous publications that sought to overcome censorship or planned to take on the government were banned from publication.

Even in the absence of media, information transmission continued smoothly due to the Sangh and BJS's people-centric mass network. For months at a stretch, innumerable pracharaks and BJS leaders secretly travelled across the country, creating awareness about the government's misdeeds and assault on democracy and freedom and mobilising support against the Emergency. For instance, Prime Minister Narendra Modi, an RSS pracharak during the Emergency, remained underground and travelled across Gujarat. He grew a thick beard to avoid getting recognised by the Police. Donning various disguises such as a Sikh with turban helped PM Modi in escaping arrest.[4]

Karyakartas from The Jana Sangh and the RSS often wore disguises to avoid detection while working to keep the struggle against the Emergency alive. Seen here is Narendra Modi, then a young Swayamsevak from Gujarat, disguised as Sikh.

The underground network overcame press censorship and other restrictions on the media by secretly publishing newspapers and other publications. These were discretely cyclostyled and distributed across the country by RSS and BJS Karyakartas working underground during the Emergency. Baldau Soni, born in 1929 in Bhopal, Madhya Pradesh, was one such dedicated soldier of the BJS. He went underground during the Emergency and actively worked for the party. Apart from helping the families of imprisoned political prisoners, he was tasked with the distribution of secretly published newspapers and pamphlets.

Shri Shanta Kumar, after serving his term in jail during the emergency. He went on to become the first non-congress Chief Minister of Himachal Pradesh

Disregarding the accompanying risks, ordinary BJS Karyakartas always prioritised the goal of ending the Emergency and restoring democracy. Homes of innumerable Karyakartas became 'safe-houses' for travelling leaders trying to escape arrest and expand the resistance. Often, they took a personal risk to protect party leaders. Rajeshwar Prasad Singh was a BJP Karyakarta from Nalanda district in Bihar. During the Emergency, Jagdish Prasad Mathur, National General Secretary of the BJS, was visiting Maniyawaan village in the Nalanda district. As soon as the local Police received this information, they surrounded the village with the sole objective of arresting him. However, Rajeshwar Prasad Singh led a team of local Karyakartas and ensured a safe escape from the village and police arrest.

Remembering the black days of Emergency : A 'Samman Samaroh' to mark thirty years of the Emergency organised in 2005, to honour the uncountable sacrifices and contributions by karyakartas in the struggle to save democracy.

Each act of defiance and resistance was a vital contribution to the movement against the Emergency. During the Emergency, the BJS and RSS operated as an extended family as all possible assistance was provided to families of detenus. Karyakartas operating underground were specifically tasked with helping the families of those who had been detained under the Emergency. Bhikubhai Hargovindas Bhatt, a lawyer by profession and BJS worker from Bhavnagar, Gujarat, remained disguised during the Emergency and worked as an underground activist. He assisted the families of many MISA detainees and cared for them like family.

For the RSS and BJS, the movement against the Emergency was a battle to save the republic. All partisan differences were forgotten in this common quest, and karyakartas helped leaders and workers from across the political spectrum. Post-emergency, leaders from various political parties appreciated Sangh's integrity and commitment to the struggle.

It is creditworthy that despite the government's arbitrary extension of unlawful arrests, denial of basic rights, and continued reliance on violence, the RSS and BJS's efforts against the Emergency remained non-violent. This demonstrated their disciplined training, deep commitment to democratic ethos, and respect for rule of law.

Occurring less than three decades since independence, the Emergency was a make-or-break moment for Indian democracy. Such trigger events often lead to democratic collapse. Like many decolonised countries across the globe, India would have also been subjected to an extended period of authoritarian rule. For an entire generation that was yet to be born when India was under British rule, the Emergency became an opportunity to participate in a 'second freedom movement'. We must be cognizant that the RSS and BJS cadre's ability to organise nationwide defiance and resistance saved India from long-term authoritarian rule.

In 1977, PM Indira Gandhi was forced to withdraw the Emergency, restore fundamental rights, and allow elections. Elections were held in March 1977, and the Janata Party, formed after the merger of Congress(O), Bharatiya Lok Dal, Bharatiya Jana Sangh, and the Socialist Party, emerged victorious.[5]

The RSS and BJS's deep commitment towards democratic ethos and public institutions, vast pan-India organisational network, and trained on-ground cadre played a pivotal role in India's fight against the Emergency. Since independence, whenever there have been attempts to trample democracy in independent India, the BJP (or the BJS) has valiantly fought to protect civil liberties and democratic rights. The party's cadre has been at the forefront of various movements for safeguarding democracy and successfully thwarted attempts to curtail democracy and stifle free speech.

India First, Always First

Today, for the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), an unyielding spirit of National service forms the very basis of existence. Serving Maa Bharati, protecting her from those who cast an evil eye and placing national growth at the highest mantle – it is to every BJP karyakarta (party worker) like breathing is to a living being.

It was this almost ascetic clarity in its purpose which propelled the Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) to assess situations with a clarity and depth that escaped other organisations. The 1953 BJS resolution in New Delhi is the perfect example of this profound clarity. While Jawaharlal Nehru, then Prime Minister of India claimed that the country faced no danger from the growing red communist dragon in China, the Jana Sangh resolved as follows:

Menacing Chinese Military Bases – The Communist Government of China is increasingly becoming more aggressive on the northern frontiers of India. She has overrun Tibet through her troops destroying her age-old freedom and she has closed in Sinkiang the Indian Consulate. Furthermore, it is constructing Military bases there within striking distance from Northern India….

Therefore, Jana Sangh is of the opinion that the Government of India should instruct her representative in Peking to protest emphatically against this aggressive policy of China and declare categorically that the MacMohan line (existing between Tibet and India) must stand intact and in no way interfered with…

The Bharatiya Jana Sangh, despite being opposed to the policies of PM Nehru, supported every effort being made to repel Chinese incursions. Seen here is a march led by the Jana Sangh giving a call to the Indian Government to stand boldly against China. (15 November, 1959)

When the 1962 war broke out, Jana Sangh karyakartas like Surendra Chhabra put aside everything and immediately began working to strengthen India's war effort by every means possible. For Chhabra, who had joined the party in 1960, the situation in 1962 was beyond despair, yet for him, nothing was above national service. Tasked with maintaining traffic in an area of the National capital as part of the war effort, Chhabra did his best, like so many others who had spent some manner of time with the BJS or the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) previously.

India first, always First: The then party President, Shri Rama Rao hoisting the National Flag at the Lucknow Convention of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh on 30 December, 1960

On the other hand, ignoring a growing threat and extending diplomatic overtures – even signing of accords such as the Panchsheel Agreement (also spelled panchshila) – by the erstwhile government not only fuelled public resentment but also made it clear that when it came to choosing between a decision that was right and one that was easy, India's ruling elite had unfortunately opted for the latter.

Before the war finally broke out in 1962, the issue of Chinese aggression had been raised by Jana Sangh - in the parliament and beyond – on several occasions. However, the same leaders who had questioned the government and had held it responsible for a lack of oversight which allowed Chinese incursions to go unchecked, had stood by it in full support when it came to defending India's sovereignty.[6] Pandit Deendayal Upadhyay, the General Secretary (organisation) of the BJS said surmised this sentiment of placing the nation's interests before the party's own when he asked the karyakartas to stand by the government. He said, "Our fight today is not with the Congress, but with the Chinese," [7]

The Jana Sangh launched itself completely into the war effort, from blood donation drives to maintenance of public order; whatever was required by the nation, Jana Sangh karyakartas were more than willing to offer.

As the Chinese aggression intensified on the northern borders, swayamsevaks (members of the RSS) and Jana Sangh karyakartas began working – in every capacity – to strengthen the national war effort – even if it was to spread awareness and patriotism. For Surendra Mohan Bhatiya, who had just completed his third OTC (Officer Training Camp) with the RSS, the war with China became a real-life test of his devotion. Through the Shakhas (training camps), he motivated fellow swayamsevaks to build peoples' awareness towards the war effort and leave no stone unturned when it came to augmenting their efforts for the benefit of the nation.

Similarly, Nand Kishore Garg, a young 13-year old boy from Jhajjar decided to lend a hand – at a time when advertisements in newspapers and magazines called the people to donate towards the cause of India's defence against foreign aggressors, young Nand Kishore went around the town collecting funds by himself and inspiring people to come together and make any small or large donation they could spare. The collections Nand Kishore and his friends made towards the National Defence Fund were then taken to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's residence in New Delhi and presented to him as the sum of their efforts. For the young boy from Jhajjar this was just the beginning of long journey filled with patriotism that blossomed as he joined the Jana Sangh and later, the Bharatiya Janata Party.

In Andhra Pradesh, for Pokkala Venkata Chalapathi Rao, his occupation as the Industrial Extension Officer meant very little when compared to peril India found herself in. He immediately put aside his day-to-day tasks and began collecting funds to help the soldiers. He was also at the centre of several agitations in the Uttarandhra region that demanded the Indian Government look into the issue of Chinese Aggression on the border.

Many swayamsevaks then participated in the 1963 Republic Day parade in New Delhi when the nation celebrated the Indian Republic.

The 1962 war served as a delayed albeit important reminder to India and her people that National Defence was and continues to be a priority. What the Jana Sangh had been reiterating in every manifesto since its inception had been proven right, but, instead of vilifying and accusing the Government, the Jana Sangh had taken the higher road and worked in tandem to ensure India put her best foot forward.

Even after the '62 war, the BJS never abandoned its resolve to strengthen India, her defences and further her interests.

These same ideals motivated a 20-year-old Praveen Tarachand Ajmera to motivate his friends and fellow college students to join the National Cadet Corps in Nadiad, Gujarat and obtain defence-related training between 1964 and 1966. This motivation and sense of duty have stayed strong with RSS, BJS and the BJP cadre since time immemorial. Being caught off-guard and the deceitful Chinese overtures, coupled with the almost consistent demand from members of the Jana Sangh had finally resulted in a nationwide and government-endorsed drive to bolster India's defence.

So, in 1965, when China decided to start another show of force and threatened a 1962-like situation thinking that the Indians would simply roll over, they were not only surprised, but were left red-faced when Sh. Atal Bihari Vajpayee, then BJS MP, decided to deploy his wit. China chose to make a ridiculous claim that some shepherds, their 800 sheep and some yak had been forcefully kidnapped by Indian forces and claimed that if they were not returned 'immediately', it would mean dire consequences. In reply, 'Vajpayee arranged for a herd of around 800 sheep and drove them to the Chinese embassy in New Delhi in late September. The sheep had placards tied to the necks saying, "Eat me but save the world." [8]

When China did mount an incursion in 1967 and initiated skirmishes along the border with Sikkim (which at that time was an Indian protectorate), it met with heavy Indian resistance and resulted in a disproportionately large number of casualties for the Chinese side.[9]

While in 1962 India waged a war and barely scraped through after being dispossessed of large tracts of land in Aksai Chin, over on the western border, Pakistan felt emboldened. To capitalise on the situation and exploit what it thought were India's weakness, Pakistan began sending armed insurgents over the border into Kashmir in hopes of inciting an uprising against India.

In this regard too, the Jana Sangh had cautioned the erstwhile Indian Government against repeated insurgency attempts by Pakistan. In 1956, the Bharatiya Jana Sangh in its Jaipur meeting had resolved as follows:

India first, always First: The then party President, Shri Rama Rao hoisting the flag at the Lucknow Convention of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh on 30 December, 1960

Hostility of Pakistan towards India which has been manifesting itself in many ways during the last 8 years has assumed dangerous proportions since the inflow of American military aid into Pakistan began…

Infiltration from Kutch to Kashmir – Pakistani spies and agents are entering India in hundreds in various ways to create internal disruption in India with the help of Anti-national elements within…

The people and Government of India cannot remain complacent about this situation. Security of the country is the primary responsibility of a free nation and it is the duty of every patriotic citizen to do his best in this regard. Bharatiya Jana Sangh, therefore, takes this opportunity to warn the people and Government of India to get ready to meet this situation.

In early 1965, Pakistan started attacking Indian bases along the western border and captured Kanjarkot in Kutch. Even at a time when Pakistan was a clear aggressor, India adopted an apologetic attitude which was opposed – tooth and nail – by the BJS. But, yet again, Pakistan did as was expected and launched attacks on India, beginning yet another conflict which soon developed into a full-blown war as Indian counter-Insurgency operations threatened to dismantle Pakistani plans to capture Kashmir.

At the same time, the Jana Sangh held over 1 lakh demonstrations against the Kutch Agreement[10] and summed up the sentiments of the entire nation in one slogan 'Fauj Na Hari, Kaum Na Hari, Haar Gayi Sarkar Hamari'.[11] (Our Army didn't lose, our people did not lose but our Government did).

At the time, India was being led by Lal Bahadur Shastri, who unlike Nehru, appreciated the Jana Sangh for voicing a sentiment felt by Indians across the country. He drew strength from the BJS demonstrations and India went into a state of war in September 1965. The Jana Sangh, yet again, stood steadfast when the nation needed it to support the war effort.

Just like they did three years ago, Jana Sangh members were seen supporting the war effort – be it serving tea and refreshment to soldiers in trains or watching over public order. In 1965, Sunil Chhabra was again ready to serve, he volunteered for the night watch and on most days, would later make his way to the Shakur Basti railway station, handing out refreshments to soldiers on their way to the western border.

While many Jana Sangh members were young at the time, it wasn't as if they were the only ones contributing to the war effort. Even senior leaders were not far behind, Bimal Kanta Ganguly, who had successfully established his medical practice in Dhubri, West Bengal over several years, shut it down and devoted his complete time to collect funds for the war effort and the Armed forces.

Infact, in a resolution from September 1965, the Jana Sangh had said, Bharatiya Jana Sangh feels proud of the magnificent response given by the nation – the Government, the defence forces and the people – to the challenge posed by Pakistan's aggression. Never before in these 18 years of independence have, the Government policies and actions been so completely in accord with the people's will as they have been during these past few weeks. Little wonder that the entire country has arisen like one man to back the Government's steps to frustrate Pakistan's malicious designs.

For the Bharatiya Jana Sangh and later the Bharatiya Janata Party, serving the nation, especially in its time of need, is a matter of unquestionable principle. In 1962 and then later in 1965, despite its dislike of the policies unveiled by the then Congress government, the BJS supported it when presenting a united front was the need of the hour. In fact, sparing a few leaders who were opposed to the BJS and the RSS fearing a loss of power and/or influence, there were many within the Congress who endorsed the Jana Sangh's view of always putting India first. These included stalwarts like Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel and even Lal Bahadur Shastri, who was the Prime Minister in 1965 and during the war, had drawn inspiration from the Jana Sangh's bipartisan support and called for an all-party meeting - that included the BJS as well as the RSS – on issues of National concern.

Over the years as the BJS evolved into the BJP, some notable instances of this bipartisan sentiment come to mind – be it Atal Bihari Vajpayee's famous statement – "I wish this tradition of working for the nation continues. Governments will come and go, parties will be made and they will collapse, but this Nation should prevail, her democracy should prevail", Prime Minister Narendra Modi who credited all former Prime Ministers for their contributions in his first Independence Day address in 2014 or the fact that in 2021, he inaugurated the Pradhan Mantri Sangrahalaya, to honour the contributions of all former PMs – irrespective of their party.

Ek Desh, Ek Vidhan

In 1952-1953, the Praja Parishad organised multiple Satyagrahas (passive, non-violent protests) and campaigned for full integration of J&K and hoisting of the national flag in Jammu and Kashmir (J&K). Hans Raj, an advocate by profession from Udhampur district, (J&K), actively participated in the movement. He was arrested numerous times because he demanded respect for the national flag and participated in these movements.

Around four decades later in 1991-1992, Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) President Dr Murli Manohar Joshi and Prime Minister Narendra Modi (then a karyakarta in the BJP) led the Ekta Yatra from Kanyakumari to Kashmir. Baban Sharma joined the Yatra from his hometown Indore, Madhya Pradesh. A few days later, on January 23, 1992, terrorists fired at a bus carrying BJP supporters to J&K for the last leg of the Yatra, i.e. unfurling the national flag at Srinagar's Lal Chowk.[12] Babban Sharma survived the attack, but the tragic memories remain lifelong scars.

Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee, founder of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh, was instrumental in highlighting the issues of the people of Jammu and Kashmir and their desire to become an inalienable part of India.

Today, in 2022, as crores of households and public buildings across the country, including J&K, hoisted the national flag to commemorate 75 years of India's independence, it seems unimaginable that even in independent India, Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) and BJP Karyakartas (party worker) had to struggle, face police brutalities, and even sacrifice their lives to hoist the national flag.

Senior Praja Parishad leaders like Pt. P.N. Dogra, Pt. Bachchha Raj Vyas with Pt. Deendayal Upadhyay and others in a procession.

From the Praja Parishad movement in the late 1940s and early 1950s to unfurling the Tiranga at Lal Chowk to culminate the Ekta Yatra in 1992 to the historic decision on Art. 370 in August 2019, the BJP has consistently pursued full integration of Jammu and Kashmir. Since independence, innumerable leaders and Karyakartas of the BJP and its predecessor BJS have participated in various movements for this nationalistic cause.

The BJS's (BJP) participation in the struggle for full integration of J&K started in the late 1940s through the Praja Parishad movement, one of the first mass movements of independent India. Founded in November, 1947 by Pt. Prem Nath Dogra, the Praja Parishad organised peaceful agitations and Satyagrahas for full and final integration of J&K with India.[13] Since its foundation, BJS leaders and Karyakartas played a pivotal role in the movement, which became the lone collective voice in J&K, opposing special constitutional provisions for J&K.

In mid-November 1952, the Praja Parishad launched a formal Satyagraha demanding full integration of J&K. The Satyagraha started with Pt. Dogra and around 200 supporters. In a few weeks, thousands of volunteers joined the Satyagraha and extended support. Within a few days of the Satyagraha, Pt. Dogra and a few other leaders were arrested by the Police. This led to the clarion call of - "Ek desh mein do vidhan, do pradhan, do nishan, nahin chalenge, nahin chalenge". [14]

BJS Karyakartas were at the forefront of this Satyagraha, which was violently repressed by the state government. One such Karyakarta was Thakur Baldev Singh, a prominent lawyer from Kathua, J&K and an ex-MP from the Jammu-

Poonch Lok Sabha seat who participated in several Praja Parishad agitations. Even multiple arrests by the hostile state police did not diminish the resolve of Thakur Baldev Singh and innumerable Karyakartas like him. Many BJS Karyakartas made difficult personal sacrifices to uphold the nationalistic cause. Master Dhian Singh, a teacher from Samba, J&K, resigned from his government job to join the Praja Parishad movement. Sacrificing the lifelong comforts of a stable government job requires huge courage and demonstrates a deep commitment to the cause.

The anti-democratic Sheikh Abdullah regime deployed every possible strategy, from illegal detention to lathicharge and firing on protestors, to suppress the mass movement. However, nothing could weaken Praja Parishad Karyakartas' resolve to achieve full and final accession of J&K with India.

Hundreds of protestors were grievously injured in more than thirty instances of lathicharge on peaceful processions and gatherings. In December 1952, a protestor was killed in police firing when he was trying to hoist the national flag at the Chamb Tehsil headquarters. This was followed by numerous deaths in Police firing on protestors trying to unfurl the national flag or assembling in protest.[15]

During the Satyagraha, more than 2500 Satyagrahis were arrested by the state police.[16] Some of the imprisoned activists were mistreated and kept in inhumane conditions.[17] Bhikham Chand Magotra, a young businessman from Udhampur who had led a few Praja Parishad demonstrations in the city, was arrested by the Police on a freezing night in January 1953. Due to heavy snowfall, the Police vehicle taking him to Srinagar jail got stuck at the Banihal tunnel. Consequently, he had to spend three months in Banihal during severe winter in a poor jail facility. The lack of adequate winter clothing and food had lifelong adverse health consequences for Magotra. Despite the inhumane conditions, Magotra refused to compromise on his beliefs and chose to complete his full jail term rather than filing a pardon plea. His wife Leela Rani was also arrested for protesting her husband's imprisonment. The administration ruined his well-established business by seizing the entire stock.

Rather than addressing their genuine grievances or accepting their nationalistic demands, the state government clamped down on protests through brutalities. Two Praja Parishad and BJS Karyakartas, Suraj Prakash Kapoor and Rishi Kumar Koushal, were arrested by the Police for participation in the movement. The former used to work in the Ordinance Department in Jammu and made his home a centre for Praja Parishad activists. The latter gave up college education to become a full-time RSS Pracharak (full-time member). He also served as the MLA from Reasi constituency. Both leaders were arrested in Jammu and airlifted to Srinagar, where they were kept in solitary confinement in tiny enclosures in freezing barracks. The deplorable conditions and food provided led to lifelong health consequences for both.

In August 1952, Jana Sangh founder Dr Syama Prasad Mookerjee made a promise at a public meeting in Jammu- "Hum Vidhan Lengeyya Balidan Denge".[18] Motivated by his call for struggle, Karyakartas from across the country made strenuous journeys traversing extremely long distances to reach J&K and participate in the movement. One such Karyakarta was Dr Surya Dev Pranacharya, the first President of BJS's Gorakhpur unit, who participated in the Kashmir Satyagraha alongside Dr Syama Prasad Mookerjee. In fact, both were imprisoned together at the Yol Camp Jail. Some could not reach and were imprisoned en route.

Dr. Murli Manohar Joshi, Shri Narendra Modi and other leaders unfurling the national tricolor at Lal Chowk in Srinagar on the conclusion of the Ekta Yatra.

It is unfortunate that Dr Syama Prasad Mookerjee had to sacrifice his life for this nationalistic cause. He passed away on June 23, 1953, in a hospital in J&K after his health condition worsened due to the denial of medical treatment in police custody. Since his untimely death, BJP Karyakartas have often raised a slogan – "Jahan balidan hue Mookerjee, voh Kashmir hamara hai". This has consistently reminded the country that numerous sacrifices have been made to achieve full integration of Jammu and Kashmir.

The BJP played an active role in making full integration of Jammu and Kashmir and abrogation of article 370 a nationwide demand. Across the country, successive generations of Karyakartas have participated in agitations and movements highlighting the situation in J&K and demanding a change in status.

The party cadre not only actively participated in the Praja Parishad movement in J&K but also made it a pan-India movement through agitations and demonstrations across the country. The entire country was shaken by the plight of Karyakartas and motivated by their resolve to hoist the national flag. The BJS organised protests in Delhi and Punjab. In fact, Karyakartas were even arrested and kept under detention for protesting against disrespect of the national flag in J&K.[19] The BJS ensured that the entire country was united against Sheikh Abdullah's devious plans and the central government's misguided Kashmir policy.

In the late 1980s, there was an alarming situation in J&K due to a reign of terrorism and failure to control anti-India elements. Once again, hoisting the tricolour in public was being restrained in the valley. Rather than remaining a mute spectator to this challenge to national unity and waiting for government, the BJP decided to send across a message to anti-India elements and mobilize mass support for the nationalistic cause. Party President Dr Murli Manohar Joshi took the bold decision of embarking on an 'Ekta Yatra' from Kanyakumari to Kashmir. The Yatra focused on national unity, and it was decided that it would end with the hoisting of the Tiranga at Srinagar's Lal Chowk on January 26, 1952. PM Narendra Modi accompanied Dr Joshi on the Yatra and played a pivotal role in organising and managing it.[20]

Karyakartas from across the country enthusiastically participated in this movement for national unity. Participants from across the country came together for this objective. Shiv Kumar Singh, ex-President of the BJP in Moradabad city in Uttar Pradesh, joined the Ekta Yatra but could not reach Kashmir as he was arrested en route. M. state unit President, participated in the Ekta Yatra to promote national unity and integrity. CKS Krishnamurthy, a BJS worker from Madurai, Tamil Nadu, since his teenage, spent almost a fortnight in J&K during the Ekta Yatra. Bharatbhai Ratilal Deliwadha, a Swayamsevak (RSS member) and former General Secretary of the BJP in Gujarat's Surendranagar district participated in the Ekta Yatra from Gujarat.

Pt. Prem Nath Dogra had often reminded Karyakartas that full integration of J&K would require a long and strenuous struggle.[21] He was prescient as the ultimate victory came more than seven decades after J&K's accession to India and the launch of his nationalist movement. Under PM Modi's leadership, Art. 370 and Article. 35A were finally removed on August 5, 2019, a momentous day in the history of independent India. This was an appropriate honour for the toil and hard work of Dr Syama Prasad Mookerjee and innumerable Karyakartas of the BJS and BJP.

Shri Ram Janmabhoomi Movement

Sheelchand Jain, a Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) Karyakarta (party worker) from Madhya Pradesh, made an arduous journey from Ganj Basoda, a remote town in Vidisha, Madhya Pradesh, to Ayodhya for Kar Seva (religious volunteering). His group of Karyakartas reached Rewa from their hometown after changing multiple trains. The nearly 300-kilometre journey from Rewa to Ayodhya was undertaken by foot. No hurdle en route, including crossing a flowing river, could diminish their enthusiasm as they were going for a divine cause. The entire group received heartwarming reception from locals throughout their entire journey.

This story encapsulates why August 5, 2020, the day when Prime Minister Narendra Modi laid the foundation of a grand Ram Temple in Ayodhya, will always hold special significance for the BJP. It was a long-awaited moment for lakhs of party Karyakartas, who had toiled for decades for this Dharmic cause. For more than three decades, the BJP engaged in active mobilization and activism for the construction of a temple at Shri Ram Janmabhoomi in Ayodhya. The BJP remained the lone political party that dared to raise its voice against pseudo-secularism and represented the collective will of civilizational glory.

In 1528, the Ram Mandir in Ayodhya was destroyed by Mughal ruler Babur. The Supreme Court's ruling in favour of a temple at Shri Ram Janmabhoomi in December 2019 ended more than 130 years of litigation.[22] More importantly, it was a culmination of almost five centuries of struggle and perseverance for building a Ram Mandir in Ayodhya, a symbol of national heritage and Bharatiya values.

Around a decade after its foundation in 1980, the BJP decided to formally join the movement for a Ram Mandir in Ayodhya. The party's Palampur National Executive meeting in 1989 turned out to be a turning point for both the BJP itself and the Ram Mandir movement. The political resolution passed at the Palampur meeting was the first occasion when the BJP officially demanded handing over Shri Ram Janmabhoomi to Hindus for the construction of a temple. The resolution stated,

A scene from Shri L.K. Advani's 'Somnath-Ayodhya 'Rath Yatra' (1990).

> "The sentiments of the people must be respected, and Ram Janmasthan handed over to the Hindus—if possible, through a negotiated settlement or else, by legislation." [23]

Since the 1989 Palampur Resolution, the BJP has consistently reiterated its promise of constructing a temple in Ayodhya in innumerable resolutions and election manifestoes.

The BJP started an extensive outreach programme to consolidate mass support for this Dharmic cause. BJP Karyakartas went door-to-door across the country and actively led local agitations for mobilizing support for Ram Mandir. One such Karyakarta was Umeshbhai Rahjyaguru, a lifelong Swayamsevak from Rajkot, Gujarat. He played a prominent role in creating widespread awareness about the Ram Mandir movement in Gujarat's Saurashtra region by ensuring that even remote villages participated in the Ram Janmabhoomi Jyotyatra. In Chhatisgarh (then Madhya Pradesh), Pt. Vishram Prasad Tiwari, used to organise local events across villages that created public awareness about the importance of a Ram Mandir in Ayodhya. Similar efforts across the country by the Sangh and BJP Karyakartas and enthusiastic public response made it evident that there was a strong national will in favour of a Ram Mandir in Ayodhya.

BJP Karyakartas from different corners of the country actively participated in the Ram Janmabhoomi movement and many even ended up being jailed for their participation. Stories from across the country reflect the party's contribution towards making it a pan-India movement and building a national will for a Ram Mandir in Ayodhya. Vadilal Nathalal Darji, a lifelong Swayamsevak and Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) and BJP Karyakarta, actively worked for the Ram Mandir movement in Meghraj Taluka in Gujarat's Arvalli district. He even went to Ayodhya for Kar Seva and was arrested for a few days. PR Ganapathi, ex-President of the BJP in Tamil Nadu's Karur Taluka and former councillor in Karur municipality, travelled all the way to Ayodhya in 1990 and was arrested by the police. This did not dampen his spirit and deter him from making a second trip to Ayodhya and getting arrested for merely supporting the Dharmic cause. Late Pravanjan Roy was a lifelong BJP Karyakarta and had even contested multiple assembly elections from Odisha's Mahanga constituency. Under his leadership, thousands of BJP Karyakartas from Odisha went to Ayodhya for Kar Seva. He was even imprisoned in the Ghazipur jail for his participation in the Ram Mandir movement. Umesh Chandra Srivastava, from Gorakphur, Uttar Pradesh, joined the BJS at the young age of 18 in 1960 and went on to serve as the city President of the party. In 1990, he participated in the Ayodhya movement and was imprisoned with numerous Karyakartas from the city. These leaders are not an exception, as Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) and BJP Karyakartas from across India made strenuous journeys to Ayodhya, performed Kar Seva at the Shri Ram Janmabhoomi, and reaffirmed their support for the divine cause. This enthusiastic nationwide demonstrates the BJP's success in uniting the country.

From the hinterland to metropolitan cities, it was evident that support for a Ram Mandir in Ayodhya transcended all social boundaries. Across caste, class, regional, and linguistic identities, Hindus stood united for the cause of constructing the Ram Mandir in Ayodhya. Ex-President of UP BJP's ST Morcha, Ram Dhani Gond, a Tribal leader from Deoria in UP, had gone to Ayodhya for Kar Seva during the Ram Mandir movement and was even arrested along with his wife. Ex-National Vice President of BJP SC Morcha, Chunnilal Ratwaya, an SC leader from Ganganagar in Rajasthan, was arrested in Agra while en route to Ayodhya for participation in agitation for Ram Mandir. BJP OBC Morcha National Executive member Bharat Lal Kushwaha, a lifelong Swayamsevak from Mau, Uttar Pradesh, took part in various programmes associated with the Ram Janmabhoomi movement and even got arrested for his engagement.

In 1990, senior BJP leader LK Advani undertook the Ram Rath Yatra to galvanize mass support for the construction of the temple in Ayodhya. The historic Yatra started from the holy city of Somnath, where the plundering of Indian temples and destruction of national heritage started in 1026. Rather than taking a direct route, the more than a month-long Yatra was to traverse multiple states before reaching its destination - Ayodhya. The Yatra started on the birth anniversary of Pt. Deendayal Upadhyay – September 25, 1990.[24]

Shri Lal Krishna Advani during the Somnath-Ayodhya Rath Yatra in 1990. The Ram Rath Yatra was to cover around 10,000 km and reach Ayodhya.

The first leg of the Yatra was managed by PM Narendra Modi, who meticulously planned the route and ensured maximal public participation and enthusiasm. The Yatra received a rousing welcome in almost every village en route and witnessed extremely enthusiastic participation. In the first few days itself, it was evident that this was not a political campaign but one of independent India's largest mass movements. [25]

The Ram Rath Yatra was an extraordinary journey that appealed to the unwavering faith of Hindus and received overwhelming support across the country. It was an attempt to reclaim a key symbol of India's cultural glory and heritage and unite the entire country through cultural nationalism. LK Advani's clarion call to reject pseudo-secularism and rejection of politics of appeasement resonated with citizens. The movement became a mass expression of deep-rooted beliefs and respect for cultural heritage. The public had a deep desire to associate with this noble movement and contribute to its larger cause of upholding civilizational glory. This sentiment was evident across the country. In 1990, Balmiki Singh from Ghazipur, Uttar Pradesh, was travelling to Ayodhya on foot alongside numerous fellow Karyakartas. After hours of walking, they reached a village on the Azamgar-Ghazipur district border. As soon as they mentioned the purpose of their journey, a young boy rushed inside his house and came back with water and jaggery. He mentioned that serving water to the Karyakartas was his small contribution to the ongoing movement. The young boy represented crores of citizens across the country who wanted to contribute in whatever way possible to extend their support to the movement.

The Yatra became a resounding success due to the silent hard work and dedication of lakhs of Karyakartas across the country. One such dedicated Karyakarta was Anindya Gopal Mitra from West Bengal. A Swayamsevak since adolescence, he often deployed ingenious ideas for party outreach. In 1990, he ensured that the PWD constructed a 4.5 km long concrete road from Purulia to Ranchi to facilitate smooth passage and maximum outreach by the Ram Rath Yatra. His efforts enabled thousands of residents to directly participate in the historic Yatra.

Due to the Janata Dal government's sinister politics, L.K. Advani was arrested in Samastipur, Bihar, on October 23.[26] Yet, thousands of Karyakartas and religious leaders still managed to reach Ayodhya as scheduled to conduct Kar Seva at the holy site. However, these peaceful Karyakartas faced one of the worst episodes of police crackdown ever in independent India.

Countless Karyakartas were arrested during this period by the Uttar Pradesh police for merely attempting to reach the holy site and perform Kar Seva as scheduled. For instance, Ishwar Dayal Kansal, who joined the BJS as a teenager in UP's Muzaffarnagar district in 1967, was imprisoned in Bulandshahr jail for almost one month in October 1990. The police arrested him in the middle of the night at 3:30 AM.

On October 30, 1990, the police received orders from CM Mulayam Singh Yadav to fire upon the peaceful Kar Sevaks. A few Karyakartas lost their lives in police firing and tens were left injured.[27] A few days later, on November 2, 1990, the police again used violence against Kar Sevaks and Sadhus (saints). Tear gas shells, lathicharge (baton charge), and finally bullets were used on Kar Sevaks, who remained peaceful. Tens of young BJP and RSS Karyakartas lost their lives in this tragic incident. This included two young brothers from Kolkata – Ram Kumar Kothari (23) and Sharad Kumar Kothari (20). Both were shot from point blank range by the police when they were performing Kar Seva in Ayodhya.[28]

Like various movements in the last seven decades, BJP Karyakartas not only toiled and worked extensively but also sacrificed their lives for the cause. A few months later, a massive memorial meeting was held at Delhi's Boat Club in memory of those who were martyred in the police firing in Ayodhya.

Even this horrific incident did not deter BJP and RSS karyakartas from continuing to visit Ayodhya and participate in Kar Seva. Alongside, the BJP, RSS, and Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP) continued their outreach efforts across the country continued to gather pace and broadened mass support for Ram Mandir. For instance, PM Modi travelled across Gujarat to collect signatures in support of the Ram Mandir agitation.[30]

The Ram Mandir movement reflected BJP Karyakartas' success in building collective will for a cultural reawakening of India. Regaining India's cultural glory became a mass movement. For more than three decades, the party not only remained committed to the cause but also ensured complete respect for the rule of law and the sensibilities of various communities.

The party's active participation in the Ram Janmabhoomi movement has been a matter of faith and reflects its consistent commitment to India's cultural awakening. The under-construction temple will be a landmark of India's civilizational glory and embody the age-old belief of 'Sarva Dharma Sama Bhava.' Moreover, as Prime Minister Modi said in his address after the Bhoomi Poojan in Ayodhya, the under-construction temple will be a modern symbol of our culture and represent eternal hope. It will be an 'emblem of collective will power of millions of people'.

Goa Liberation Movement

It was on 13th June 1955 when Jagannath Rao Joshi, a Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) leader along with several other volunteers of Karnataka, launched the first Goa Satyagraha (passive, non-violent protest). Accompanied by a team of about 3,000 workers, including women, they reached the border to enter Goa. The Portuguese resorted to lathi charge and fired on the satyagrahis. Again, on 15th August 1955 more than 5,000 satyagrahis were fired upon by the Portuguese army deployed in Goa, killing about 51 people. Many such movements continued till 1961. Over the years, several karyakartas of the Jana Sangh from all states took part in the agitation. Numerous were injured, and many were even killed. The writing was on the wall: it was essential to liberate Goa.

When India was celebrating its independence in 1947, Goa was still under Portuguese rule. Goa was formally liberated from Portuguese colonial rule 15 years after India's independence in 1961. Portugal continuously challenged India's claim on its coastal enclave of Goa but despite this, nationalism in Goa grew akin to the spirit of national pride and anti-British sentiment that arose especially during the turn of the 20th century. The continued presence of the Portuguese in India post-1947 remained to be a grave threat to India's unity, integrity and national security while also challenging India's sovereignty. But the ban on the presence of Indian satyagrahis in Goa to fight for liberation did not stop them from making their voices heard and helping those who were still trapped under colonial shackles.

Initially, there emerged two factions- one that represented the interests of the coloniser and the other that was determined to stay true to its roots. Many accounts of Indians who fought and got caught in the firing on the border of colonised Goa and free Maharashtra by the Portuguese, prove how those that aimed to protect the ethos of the Indian identity ferociously did so and against all odds. There are records of many karyakartas who came from meagre means but regardless of their background, were backed by grand beliefs- that of fighting for their rights and against grave injustice, even if it meant it would cost them their lives.

Under the leadership of the then Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, India was initially not eager to militarily assert itself against Portugal. In 1951, Portugal amended its Constitution to claim Goa not as a colonial province, but as an overseas province. This was aimed to make Goa a part of the rather new North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) military alliance. This led to their sustained colonial rule of Goa, for many years. Despite best efforts, India could not garner international support o evict Portuguese imperialists from Indian soil. This was also when the BJS openly criticised even the British for not lending its support to India, despite being a Commonwealth nation. Hence, taking stalk of the situation, for several years, the Jana Sangh recruited and mobilised satyagrahis to fight for the liberation of Goa. They led the struggle by formally organising meetings and demonstrations to create awareness and mass agitation to pressurise the government into acting immediately. The Goa Vimochan Sahayak Samiti (Goa Liberation Committee) set up by the Jana Sangh, paved the way for mobilising people for the just cause- that of liberating Goa from Portugal's tyranny and unsiting it with the Indian union.

The liberation movement gained momentum from 1955 to 1961 when not one, but thousands fought for the rights of Indians in Goa, fought to end repressive injustices, and helped unite Goa with the Indian Union. The struggle of the people facing harsh realities every day under the Portuguese was relentless. Seeing the atrocities being suffered by innocent people, many members of the Jana Sangh decided to take matters into their own hands. Madhavrao Kane, an activist from a humble background greatly helped establish the Jana Sangh and immensely helped its activities gain momentum in the tribal areas near Thane, Maharashtra. He also fought valiantly for Goa's liberation and was one of the many who were injured in the firing by the Portuguese army.

On November 2, 1990, a large group of karsevaks, including the Kothari brothers, were fired upon for demanding that they be allowed to go to the Shri Ram Janmabhoomi. Ram and Sharad Kothari, both in their early twenties, sustained fatal injuries in the firing.

Karyakartas entering Goa to offer Satyagraha for the state's liberation from Portuguese rule.

He was also imprisoned later, for taking part in the agitation. Govind Hanumantrao Sadar Joshi's dedication to working for the Jana Sangh knew no bounds as he selflessly participated in mobilising and preaching its ideals for a decade. He was arrested along with Jagannathrao Joshi and inhumanely kept in custody for a long time. He was also one of the many satyagrahis who endured the military force of the Portuguese army during the firing and was later left amidst the jungles of Goa, to fend for himself. Wounded and heavily injured, he somehow found his way home.

As Pt. Deendayal demanded police action against the Portuguese, ordinary people set out to do the extraordinary. From a very tender age, Laxmi Narayan Soni became a torchbearer of liberation and became active in the Jana Sangh. He actively got involved to work for the noble cause of nation-building and actively fought for the liberation of Goa.

The mass mobilisation of the Jana Sangh to liberate Goa spread like wildfire across the country. It ignited the flame in those who believed that the people of Goa were Indians in need and were willing to sacrifice their lives for the cause. Thus, people from the farthest corners of the country answered clarion calls of the leaders who proudly proclaimed that which echoed the sentiments of most Indians eager to help Goa- that Goa was to be reunited with India. Originally from Mangalore, G. Ratnakar Kamath joined the Goa liberation movement under the leadership of Madhav Acharya. As someone who had joined the RSS at a very tender age, he stood by the Sangh's ideals and selflessly gave back to society. He gave his house to be a centre for various organisational activities for the party. While in Tamil Nadu, C. Jeevarathinam was also influenced by various other Jana Sangh stalwarts of the party. He was also part of the Jana Sangh's Goa Liberation Agitations in 1960 and bravely fought during the time as well. His dedication to the party didn't only stop him from contributing then but also proved to be consistent. A dedicated party worker, his contribution didn't go in vain. M. Umanatha Rao, a veteran member of the Jana Sangh from the north Malabar maintained his association with the RSS and later on with the Jana Sangh since its early days. With the values and ideals of the Jana Sangh ingrained in him, he took part in the Goa liberation agitation in 1956 and was also subjected to police brutality and the atrocities of the Portuguese.

Sudhir Phadke emerged as a true nationalist voice in the country and aided the liberation on cultural grounds.[31] A musician by profession, he stayed true to his ideals of a true swayamsevak and also adopted a unique approach to solving the monetary crisis that emerged for organised various activities for Goa's liberation. He convinced Lata Mangeshkar to participate in the fund-raising concert, the proceeds of which would go towards supporting the satyagrahis liberating Goa.

P.V. Ramakrishnan was a dedicated party member who joined the Jana Sangh when it was first founded in the Kanchipuram District of Tamil Nadu. Since then, his efforts led him to contribute to the liberation of Goa where he actively took part in the agitations in 1960. His strong will to make a difference and mobilise others to join him and the party for the cause earned him many positions in the party at the district and state levels. His dedication to the cause was shown in the way he had convinced not only himself but also those around him to think of the nation first and the self, last. T. Sukumaran of Kozhikode was an author and an activist of the Jana Sangh during the 1960s. Though, just an ordinary worker in a tile factory in his native town he was associated with the Bharatiya Mazdoor Sangh from the days of its formation in Kerala and was among the satyagrahis who took part in the Goa liberation struggle in the early stages of that movement.

The glorious martyrdom of the satyagrahis proved to the rest of India and the Portuguese that Goa was to be eventually liberated. The public anger it gave rise to, and the various mammoth-sized demonstrations made it amply clear that Goa was an issue for which people from all corners of India were united. The cause for which men, women, of all ages and castes had united eventually did create ripples in the minds of many Indians, urging them to fight for their nation. Born into a peasant family in Parkala Village, Warangal, Telangana, Janga Reddy showed a keen interest in serving society and was thus attracted to the ideology of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS). As a young activist, he participated in not one but several movements in his capacity, to fight injustice and restore peace for the socially and economically backward people. One such movement was the Goa liberation struggle where he actively participated to organise party activities and aided satyagrahis for the justice of Indians under Portuguese rule. A grassroots leader, he was also imprisoned several times. He was also an educationalist and taught Hindi for many years while holding many positions in the RSS and the BJP. His tireless service showed glorious results as he established 40 colleges in rural and backward regions in Telangana while also spearheading the establishment of several engineering institutions to make higher education accessible to the rural youth. His life and his stellar contributions are an inspiration and testament to treading the path of dharma and service.

Women were not left behind in participating in the struggle for Goa. Whoever felt for the cause dedicated their being to help in whichever way they could. Those who came from limited means also contributed heavily to the struggle in their own unique way, taking strength from numbers and garnering support in innovative ways. Among the various organised efforts of the Rashtra Sevika Samiti led by Saraswati Apte was the food which was arranged for satyagrahis fighting for Goa's liberation in Pune. Though a basic necessity which would seem small in the larger scheme of events, it was enough to help many satyagrahis sustain and keep fighting.[32]

Thus, we see how the party's belief in working for the nation first has reflected in the selfless efforts made not only by all members but also by all Indians who surrounded members, to join in the cause and surrender their all. Careful planning, sustained organisational efforts, and targeted efforts of mobilizing people, especially at the grassroots level culminated in a Jan Andolan that resonated with the masses and effectively hasten the liberation of Goa.

The Lotus Blooms

The formation and expansion of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) are rooted in the tireless toil of the innumerable karyakartas (party members) and pracharaks (full-time members). The vast organisational presence of the BJS did not get established in one night or even a few days or months. Since several years, the service of millions has led to the Jana Sangh's firm establishment in the country while keeping alive the tradition of doing seva (service), without the greed of recognition. The BJS, that consisted of a large number of swayamsevaks (RSS members) from the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), evolved into the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) in 1980. In 2014, the BJP claimed a historic victory of getting a majority on its own as no party apart from the Congress had won an absolute majority in the Lok Sabha. BJP's national presence now has a direct correlation with those who worked for the party and to expand its socio-political presence. In many cases, they built its base from scratch and dedicated their whole lives towards this sole cause. Despite having limited resources, they travelled thousands of kilometres, adopted unique approaches to establish the Sangathan, and spread awareness about the Jana Sangh which has eventually led to the party's firm electoral footprint across several states in the country.

Across the country, the toil of carrying out activities for the party has been vital to the party to carry forward its lineage. Time and time again, the BJS had not only inspired karyakartas ideologically but has also physically motivated them to propagate the party's ideas and build centres for the party in remote areas. Born in Rajasthan, Bhawar Lal Rathi joined the RSS in 1943. A freedom fighter and social worker, he went to Assam in 1950 and worked for the RSS at Dergaon. This was followed by him laying the foundation for the Jana Sangh in Assam in 1961. Seeing his dedication for doing social service, his love for the nation and his commitment to building organisations that helped sustain the party, it is evident how his staunch belief in the Sangh inspired his actions.

The actions of numerous karyakartas have undoubtedly managed to inspire multiple generations of karyakartas to continue the ethos of the party. By giving future karyakartas a strong base to build the party, they have passed on the spirit of selfless service in remote areas. Gopal Rao Tagore travelled to Vijayawada, Andhra Pradesh from Maharashtra in 1940 as a campaigner for the RSS. The presence of the RSS was still limited in Andhra Pradesh at that time and there were no acquaintances or a network for him to bank on. In such a difficult situation, even without knowing the language, he started RSS branches in Vijayawada and Guntur. By 1948, he also oversaw the expansion of RSS shakhas (training camps) to several villages in the Krishna district despite facing physical attacks from the Communists. During 1950-52, he further worked for the expansion of the Jana Sangh in the Rayalaseema district and carried out drought relief activities. During 1952-54, he visited the Rayalaseema and Circar districts extensively and held meetings with people from various walks of life, while also identifying potential leaders for the BJS. He dedicated his life till the end to strengthening the organisation from the grassroots level. He was also instrumental in bringing new people to the party and laying a strong foundation for the Jana Sangh through his hard work, simplicity and generous nature. Despite his ailing health, he continued his service to the party till he breathed his last. His contributions are nothing short of commendable.

Multiple accounts of karyakartas are a testament to building the base of the Jana Sangh from scratch. They have, in many cases, helped in the expansion of the party from the district to the state and eventually the national level. Popularly known as 'Appu Chettan', G. Narayana Pillai was one of the founding leaders of the Jana Sangh in the Ernakulam district, in Kerala. He was the District General Secretary of Jana Sangh for two years and later became the BJP district President of Ernakulam. His education in Sanskrit at Aluva was what attracted him to the RSS shakha in his neighbourhood. In 1948, when the RSS was banned, Ramachandra, among others, was also arrested and jailed. Later he became a vistarak of the Sangh. He played a key role in expanding RSS activities in and around Aluva. He also took the post of the Ernakulam district general secretary in 1970. He was active in the Janata party too and held the responsibilities of District General Secretary, District President in Ernakulam and also held the position of the District President of the BJP's Kisan Morcha for a few years. Appu Chettan was always known as one who stood with the karyakartas, by their side in their hour of need and their aid during times of distress. A dedicated family man and a dutiful karyakarta, he made sure to carry forward his legacy of dedicated service to the party and never backing down from challenges. His service has proved to be of immense significance to the party and its current presence.

Stories of several pracharaks who did not let the lack of resources weaken their resolve to build macro-level support for the party are still unknown to the public but nevertheless, their actions have left an indelible mark on many. R. Mohan Rao came in contact with the BJS while working as a small businessman in the Andaman & Nicobar Islands. While visiting the shakhas regularly, he got inspired by the ideology of the BJP and became a member. His staunch belief in the ideals of the Jana Sangh led him to serve in many positions in the party such as the President of the Bharatiya Janata Yuva Morcha. Participating in the movements for raising awareness about the policies of the then ruling government, he also made significant contributions to the party, recruiting many youngsters and bringing them on board. To establish the BJP on the isolated island of Campbell Bay, he travelled vastly with Bishnu Pada Ray. They held meetings in temples due to the lack of resources and often ended up taking shelter in the night there too, showcasing unmatched dedication. With time, word travelled many miles and ordinary people also began to contribute by joining them on their journey, making arrangements for their meals, giving up their homes and offering them shelter. Their power of mobilising workers was so effective that more workers got involved and joined the cause of establishing the party in remote areas.

Shri Kushabhau Thakre, Shri Atal Bihari Vajpayee, Shri Padmanabh Acharya and Shri Dileep Singh Judeo at the BJP Conference of the North-Eastern states.

A karyakarta in the truest sense, he also played an active role in collecting the iron for the construction of the statue of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel- the Statue of Unity. His presence has served as a source of inspiration and motivation for the youth and for several party workers.

Revitalising India through weaving threads of cultural similarities across the nation has been central to the expansion of the Jana Sangh in the remotest parts of the northeast. By debunking the idea of the Northeast being a separate entity and culturally different from the rest of India, the ethos of the expansion of the BJP and the larger Sangh has been to make the masses realise the power of a shared past and cultural oneness. Several karykartas and pracharaks of the Jana Sangh have dedicated themselves with all they had towards the proliferation of the party. Kashi Bajaj from Meghalaya was not only a staunch supporter of the Jana Sangh, he believed in the party so much so that he worked for spreading the party's ideals and establishing the party in those remote parts of the northeast where nobody had earlier dared to. In 1965, when Shillong was the capital of the undivided state of Assam, Kashi Bajaj was among the seven individuals who formed the Jana Sangh which was led by Syama Prasad Mookerjee (SPM). He also contributed to the expansion of the party by travelling to other severely remote parts of the northeast along with his fellow karyakarta Ram Sevak Singh. They formed mandals in many places and educated several people about the party's reformatory beliefs and strategised actions. His dedicated service still continues to be a source of inspiration for many. In Assam, Kshirod Chandra Roy from Hailakandi, was very active in social work since a very young age and worked extensively to help the needy and the downtrodden. A lawyer by profession, he was also closely associated with SPM. This led him to join the Jana Sangh where he also assumed a significant position in the party and continued his work. Sashankha Shekher Bhattacharjee from Cachar had acquired the knowledge of Vedas at a very young age. He was an ayurvedic doctor who dedicated his entire life to the well-being of others. As one of the founding members of the Jana Sangh and its first Vice President in Assam, he was instrumental in structuring and organising the activities of the BJS. During the emergency, multiple arrest warrants were issued by the then Congress government to arrest him however, due to his masterful camouflage, he evaded being arrested multiple times during when he was undercover. He played a key role in forming the alliance of all the like-minded parties and led the formation of the Janata Party in Assam when the emergency was declared. He conducted the first Janata Party State Level Meet in Shillong, Silchar in the presence of significant members, further establishing the party in Assam.

Many accounts of karyakartas trace the journeys of those who travelled long distances and relocated to do so, continued regardless of the situation they were thrown in. Backed by strong ideals, they didn't back down in the face of atrocities and continued the work of extending the legacy of the party. Sridhar Acharya was born in Udupi, Odisha

and moved to Bombay for his higher education and was a double graduate. He came in contact with RSS during his student days in 1946 and became a Pracharak in 1950. He was in Maharashtra as a pracharak in his initial years and was later deputed to Odisha. Since then, Odisha became his Karmabhoomi till his last breath. Despite all initial difficulties, he was successful in mobilising people and organising activities for the RSS in the Balangeer district. This also motivated him to work for the post of State General Secretary of the Jana Sangh in Odisha. He became a Vibhag Pracharak in Sambalpur by 1977. In 1980, he was appointed as the State Chief for 'Samskriti Raksha Yojana' for Odisha and subsequently, in 1990 he was deputed for carrying out Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP) activities. In 1993, he was appointed to look after the publication related aspects of VHP in Sankat Vimochan Ashram, National headquarters of VHP at Delhi. He was very fluent in Marathi, Bengali, Odiya, Hindi, Sanskrit, Kannada, Konkani, Tulu, English and also a few tribal languages. It was this ability that lent him the access to extend the BJS in remote areas. He paved the way for nationalistic thinking in western Odisha as in Kalahandi and Bolangir. A new era of BJP also grew during his time. The various initiatives of the Jana Sangh were greatly being appreciated by people under his leadership. Thus, he dutifully carried forward the ideas of the Vishwa Hindu Parishad in Odisha.

A mammoth crowd gathers in the remote Andaman-Nicobar islands to listen to an address by Shri Atal Bihari Vajpayee

The party's presence in India today has been the direct result of such karyakartas who have taken the party's ideals to remote parts of the country. Through their commendable efforts they have spread the spirit of Seva with full devotion and zeal. Their spirits remained undampened and they remained undeterred, facing challenges head on. They have not only contributed to the party's great reach all over the country, their efforts have culminated into what the party is today.

Kutch Satyagraha

Jana Sangh leaders hold protest against the Kutch Agreement at the Parliament (1965).

Bachchraj Vyas, a lawyer who had prioritised building the nation over accumulating luxuries and wealth and had joined the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh) as a Pracharak (full-time worker) in Rajasthan. For a Swayamsevak (RSS member) and later a karyakarta (party worker) of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) – to see a part of the nation being given away almost voluntarily was not only painful, but also against the very idea of existence. This, however, was how the Kutch Agreement of 1965 between India and Pakistan was designed and precisely why it was unacceptable to every Jana Sangh karyakarta like Vyas. He was with the Jana Sangh in Nagpur at the time the pact was announced and immediately decided to join the movement against it, leading a team of Jana Sangh karyakartas from Nagpur to join the agitation.

The Kutch Satyagraha (passive, non-violent protest), and the agreement against which it was staged, was a result of Pakistan being emboldened after India's war with China in 1962 and hatching a plan to occupy Indian territories in the same manner that China had.

The larger plan was actually put in motion in order to allow easy access to insurgents from Pakistan by diverting Indian attention away from the northern front and over to the west near Gujarat. The ready supply of heavy-duty tanks, armour, and advanced weaponry had been provided to Pakistan by the USA. Even though the Pakistani Army had been warned not to use the supplies against India, it had ignored all warnings and captured large tracts of land around Kanjarkot in the Rann of Kachchh (also spelled Kutch).

This heavily armoured thrust towards Indian posts was codenamed Operation Desert Hawk and forced India to retreat in absence of hardware and manpower that could match the pre-planned offensive.

In this regard, the Bharatiya Jana Sangh's resolution presented in Jaipur in 1956, could have saved countless lives and resources had the then Nehru Government paid heed to it; which of course, it did not:

MILITARY AID INCREASES PAK DANGER

Hostility of Pakistan towards India which has been manifesting itself in many ways during the last years has assumed dangerous proportions since the inflow of American military aid into Pakistan began. Growing number of border raids, persistent preaching of Jehad against India by Pakistani press and misleading propaganda against India by Pakistani leaders and rulers who have joined the Baghdad Pact and SEATO to encircle India give a clear indication of the seriousness of the situation.[33]

If the Indian retreat, even when it came with a splendid display of courage and grit by the Indian forces, lowered national morale. The Kutch Agreement, proposed as the official ceasefire declaration by the British Prime Minister, and the Indian government's acceptance of the same on June 30, 1965 – dealt a much heavier blow.

Kachchh ho ya Guwahati, apna desh apni maati (Whether it's Kutch or Guwahati- It's our country, our soil.)
- Kutch Andolan-Bharatiya Jana Sangh, Indore-1965

For the BJS, and today, in the history of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), the movement against the Kutch Agreement was one of the most iconic and decisive rallying points. Ceding away parts of Indian territory had become unavoidable due to the policy failures in the 1962 war, however, to have this brutal part of history repeated – within 3 years – was unacceptable.

The Jana Sangh's response was to launch one of the biggest agitations witnessed in Independent India's 18-year history. Party records indicate that over one lakh demonstrations were held across the country that saw participation not only by Jana Sangh karyakartas but people across castes, genders, geographies and economic statuses. Being asked to agree to the terms of Pakistani occupation in the Rann of Kachchh was the last straw that crumbled the patience of crores of Indians.

By August 1965 – a month after the agreement was signed - people's anger was at its maximum as Pakistan's cross-border hostilities had not ceased. On the other hand, reports of armed insurgents had begun coming in from Jammu and Kashmir which added fuel to the fire. On August 16, a day after India's Independence Day celebrations, a crowd of over 5 lakh assembled in New Delhi and demanded that the agreement be rolled back and Indian territory be reclaimed; leading it were BJS karyakartas.

The Anti-Kutch agreement movement saw unprecedented participation from all sections of society and all walks of life. When Mangala Behre from Satara who had managed the work for the party along with her household duties, heard the news on the radio, she was already distressed from hearing the tough situation in which the Indian soldiers were before the ceasefire was declared. When she learned about the satyagraha against the disproportionately tilted agreement, there was no stopping her. Her fierce love for Maa Bharti manifested in a resolute and unmovable spirit during the Satyagraha in Mumbai. When the authorities failed in breaking her resolve, they had to arrest and jail her for over two weeks.

A demonstration by Jana Sangh Karyakartas demanding that the one-sided Kutch Agreement be rolled back (1965)

The news of the anti-Kutch Agreement agitation spread throughout the country like wildfire. In every home, in every locality, and in every state, Jana Sangh karyakartas were not only holding demonstrations but were also raising awareness about India's war effort – what was needed and how it could be achieved. It was during the same time that Kapoor Chand Jain decided to join the massive demonstration in Kutch and began his long journey from the eastern part of the country to the westernmost region of India with a strong resolve in his heart. By now, these demonstrations had effectively captured the attention of the masses and, the ruling establishment; perhaps why KC Jain was arrested en route to Kutch and promptly shipped off to the Tihar Jail in New Delhi.

Pt. Bachchh Raj Vyas participating in the Kutch Andolan, Pt. Deendayal Upadhyay and other senior leaders of the Jana Sangh.

All the way around the southern tip of India, Manchanamatam Balagopal from Kerala was also contemplating how he could express his protest against this injustice. For Bal ji, as he was popularly known, the Jana Sangh's call for a Satyagraha against the Kutch Agreement was nothing short of electrifying. He immediately made his way to Gujarat and fortunately, made it to Kutch without any incident and participated in one of the biggest agitations witnessed in the country post-Independence.

The Satyagraha and nationwide agitation by Jana Sangh were among the pivotal factors that took the people's voice to the government. Upon careful consideration, it become evident that the entire nation had united as one against the agreement. The government had realized that inorder to save face, it must honor the demand of the people.

Today, India's borders are protected by specialised border forces, be it the Border Security Force – which was raised in late 1965, the Sashastra Seema Bal (raised originally in 1963/64), or the Indo-Tibetan Border Police raised after the 1962 war with China. It is important to note that Jana Sangh had advocated for the same much before any of the wars (1962 or 1965) had broken out.

Shri Govardhanlal Khandelwal of Madhya Pradesh being arrested and being pushed into a van for his involvement in the Satyagraha against the surrender of Kutch.

The election manifesto of Jana Sangh in 1958 had the following resolution :

The guarding of the borders will be the Centre's responsibility, for which a Border Police Establishment will be constituted. Strong steps will be taken to check infiltration and smuggling. The Intelligence Department will be made more active and efficient so that strict watch is kept on the activities of foreign spies and fifth columnists, and their nefarious designs are foiled even before they take shape.[34]

This promise was reiterated with greater emphasis and almost singular import in the 1962 election manifesto.

For the BJS, it was never a quest for relevance or political mileage, just like it has never been for the BJP. The surgical strikes and air strikes India conducted on terror hotspots across the border under PM Narendra Modi's leadership were also a necessity and the people's wish. The difference was that this time around, India had a leader with a long-term vision who believed in prevention rather than a reaction.

For the BJS, it was never a quest for relevance or political mileage, just like it has never been for the BJP. Under the leadership of PM Narendra Modi, no longer injustices against India would be tolerated. The surgical strikes conducted was not just a message to the world but a promise to the children of Maa Bharati, under the new mantra 'India First'.

1971 Bangladesh Liberation

Swadheen Bangladesh Ko Manyata Do (Recognise an independent Bangladesh) - Jana Sangh leaders address a massive gathering in support of Bangladesh. (15 April, 1971)

India's partition in 1947 gave rise to two independent states, India and the newly created East & West Pakistan. While Pakistan's military misadventures were focused primarily along India's western borders, over in erstwhile East Pakistan, Pakistani troops were committing grave atrocities on minorities and women, leading to an international crisis. Even after repeated appeals by the Indian Government, Pakistan didn't relent. Given that East & West Pakistan were separated from each other by more than 1,600 kms, cultural and political assimilation seemed almost impossible. Rather than welcoming and accommodating a multi-cultural society, the Pakistani government launched a ruthless campaign to cleanse the region of any opposing and dissident voices, be it the minority Hindus or Bengali-speaking Muslims. Mass murders, genocide, rapes and torture became the norm of the day and millions joined an exodus to find safe-haven in India.

Looking back, the problem was already foresighted by the Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) in one of its first-ever resolutions on December 31, 1952:

EXODUS FROM EAST BENGAL [35]

The people of India are gravely concerned over the continuously deteriorating

Pt. Prem Nath Dogra inaugurating the Pak war and Bangladesh exhibition at the general council session at Ghaziabad.

condition of the Hindus in East Bengal. This anxiety has grown all the greater since it became clear that the policy of Pakistan is to drive out all those who are of strong will and to force through atrocities the weaker to embrace Islam.

They are already on the move in this direction.

....India cannot watch all this in silence, for it had accepted the responsibility of the protection of Hindus of Pakistan. The Hindus in Pakistan had not asked for partition but it was thrust upon them against their wishes, and at the time of partition leaders of India including Mahatma Gandhi, Sardar Patel and Shri Nehru had given them the clear promise that it would be the duty of the people and the Government of India to always consider protection of their interests.

At the same time, if the exodus of Hindus from East Bengal continues as at present and if they have to take shelter in India, nearly 1 crore people will have to be settled and given employment to. This is beyond the means of India and would break the economic back of the country...

Similar resolutions were also passed by the Indian government to highlight the unfolding humanitarian crisis.

In 1970, the democratically elected government in East Pakistan was dismissed without cause marking the beginning of an all-out genocide. A year later, the Pakistani government started systematic killings and cleansing of any nationalistic voice that spoke in favour of an independent Bangladesh. This included students, women, intelligentsia, minorities and even armed personnel serving in the Pakistani forces. The atrocities being perpetrated had reached such a humungous level that the entire world was now looking to India for a solution.

By this time, the Jana Sangh had already realised that its pleas, resolutions and warnings, were getting ignored. Sh. Atal Bihari Vajpayee, who was amongst the first Indian leaders to accept Bangladesh as a separate entity and demanded recognition for it, had even foreshadowed a possible war, that India was already heading into– as early as June 1971:

"…not to compromise with the present position and to create conditions in Bangladesh whereby displaced persons could return to their homes and democracy could be established there."

…'if there is no alternative except war India should get ready for war". [37]

By July, as the situation continued to deteriorate in East Pakistan, the Jana Sangh started a nationwide campaign to spread awareness and educate the masses about the grave atrocities being carried out across the border.

The Jana Sangh had resolved to provide 'Immediate recognition to the democratically elected government of Swadhin Bangladesh and effective moral and material help should be given to normalise conditions…'

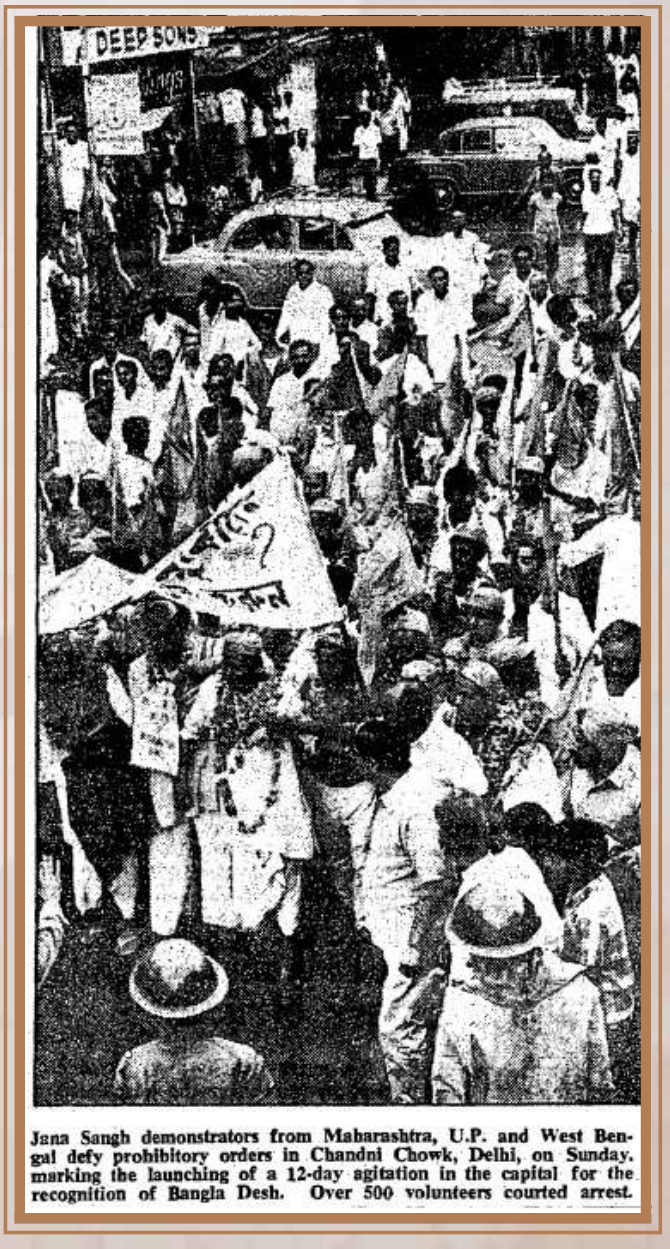
As another month passed and millions more had to leave their homes and push forth across the border into India fearing for their lives, the Jana Sangh decided to launch a nationwide Satyagraha to bring the attention of the government to the humanitarian crimes being perpetrated in East Pakistan.



Jana Sangh demonstrators from Maharashtra, U.P. and West Bengal defy prohibitory orders in Chandni Chowk, Delhi, on Sunday, marking the launching of a 12-day agitation in the capital for the recognition of Bangla Desh. Over 500 volunteers courted arrest.

A Newspaper clipping from August 3, 1971 showcasing Jana Sangh karyakartas as they hold a massive rally to mark the beginning of the 12-day agitation to demand the recognition of a Swadheen (independent) Bangladesh

For Lal Rajendra Nath Shahdeo, who was born just two months after India's independence, an association with Jana Sangh had developed almost naturally. Upon hearing the call for a Satyagraha, Shahdeo held multiple meetings before a team of 300 karyakartas (party workers) left from south Bihar to New Delhi. The Jana Sangh would then stage a massive demonstration before the Pakistani embassy that resulted in the Police arresting several of its members. Shahdeo was also arrested and sent to the Tihar jail for 21 days but little did he know that this 'Jail Yatra' would be an eventful affair after all. While he was incarcerated, Shahdeo met Shaheed Bhagat Singh's younger brother, Sh. Kulbir Singh. The day he was arrested, he was accompanied by thousands of Jana Sangh members such as Dharamveer Sharma from New Delhi, Shri Govidaraju Venkata Lakshminarsimha Rao from Andhra Pradesh and S Selvraj from Tamil Nadu. No matter where the karyakartas hailed from, on the day of the agitation, everyone had the same phrase on their lips "Swadhin Bangladesh ko manyata do…" (Give recognition to an independent Bangladesh).

Also put in jail, albeit for two days, was another Jana Sangh activist, Ram Sevak Tripathi who had travelled to New Delhi from Uttar Pradesh, after getting inspired hearing Sh. Atal Bihari Vajpayee speak to the masses at the Sardar Patel Chowk. With a resolve as strong as iron, he proceeded for the Bangladesh Satyagraha where he was arrested along with hundreds of Jana Sangh karyakartas.

Similarly, among those from the country's western parts was Ratan Lal Bohra, an active Jana Sangh member from Barmer, Rajasthan, just a few kilometres from the India-Pakistan border. To honour the nationwide call for the satyagraha, Bohra also made his way to Delhi where he too followed in the footsteps of party leaders and put up a non-violent demonstration. Despite following all rules and taking a disciplined approach to their protest, Bohra, like so many others like him, was arrested and taken to Tihar Jail.

Amongst them was another activist who had decided to take it a step further – Acharya Sitaram Shastri. Shastri, a teacher by profession had joined the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh and completed two OTCs before joining the Jana Sangh. To him, it became imperative to hold a demonstration right at the heart of the problem,and so, instead of protesting outside the Pakistani embassy in New Delhi, he made his way to Bangladesh and demanded that the then Pakistani premier, Ayub Khan relinquish his control over East Pakistan and recognise an independent Bangladesh. Shastri then made his way to New Delhi to join the massive satyagraha, where he too was promptly arrested and imprisoned.

During the agitation, a total of over 28,000 Jana Sangh Karyakartas had courted arrest - the most being from Delhi where around 11,000 were arrested; their crime had been to demand that government take some action on its own, rather than await support from other foreign nations, which was never coming. Almost all 28,000 karyakartas went on to hold several important positions in the BJS, and later, the Bharatiya Janata party.

In the midst of those who were arrested and lodged in the Tihar jail was a young 20-year-old boy from Vadnagar who was eager to join the RSS. Not only would he go on to join the RSS and later the BJP, we know him, today, as the Prime Minister of India, Sh. Narendra Modi.

In 2015, when Prime Minister Narendra Modi visited Bangladesh, he accepted the Award of Bangladesh Liberation War Honour on behalf of former PM Sh. Atal Bihari Vajpayee for the latter's "active role" in the country's (Bangladesh) independence struggle and consolidating India's friendship.

At the ceremony which Sh. Vajpayee's health did not permit him to attend, PM Modi reminisced about the time he was amongst the thousands of Jana Sangh karyakartas who were arrested, and recalled that when nationalist muktijoddhas (freedom fighters) were fighting to liberate Bangladesh, Indians were fighting with them side-by-side to help realise their dream.[38]

With the nationwide movement, the BJS - yet again - achieved its aim of uniting the nation for one goal– the liberation of Bangladesh. The Government, at the time headed by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, was unable to ignore it, and a formal mobilisation of the Indian Armed forces was started soon after.

On a chilly December evening in 1971, as the sleepy town of Bikaner on the western border was turning in for the night, sirens rang from the Nal Airfield as Pakistani jets thundered above – dropping bombs at will. Pakistan had started Operation Chengiz Khan and pre-emptive air strikes had been launched all across the western border, be it Bhuj, Jaisalmer, Bikaner, Ambala, Agra, Amritsar or Srinagar – everywhere it was the same story.

After the jets had passed – surprisingly without much damage – Pakistani propaganda could be heard over the radiowaves that made their way over the border, "Humne Bikaner Sheher Tehes-Nehes kar diya hai" (We've destroyed the city of Bikaner). Strangely though, nothing of the sort had been achieved.[39]

In fact, the strikes – which were later revealed to have been launched in utter confusion and sheer panic, had failed to cause any major damage. They did, however, mark the beginning of the 1971 Bangladesh Liberation War.

Given the nationwide agitations and the massive show of protest in Delhi by the Jana Sangh, the government had finally agreed to maintain readiness for an eventual armed conflict, which Pakistan had now initiated. Indian forces sprang into action and systematically decimated the Pakistani forces on land, in air, and at sea – all in less than a fortnight. By December 16, 1971 – 13 days after Operation Chengiz Khan was started – Pakistan's Lt. Gen Niazi signed the instrument of surrender and an independent Bangladesh was born.

A Party of, by and for the Bharatiya Janata

India's political scenario immediately after our independence in 1947 was concentrated majorly around the Indian National Congress (INC). While that may be largely due to the idea of presenting a united and consolidated front to pave the way for an independent India, it never encouraged the development of new political ideas and ideologies – taking India back to the age of age monarchs to whom it had just shown the door.

The INC had assumed the role of a national party on account of many official ministers who formed the new government coming together under the same banner. This eventually became the reason why – on more than one occasion – the congress failed to grasp the pulse of the Indian people and took decisions that resulted in mass agitations and a dissatisfied electorate.

Even today, three-quarters of a century after India became independent, this disconnect with the people happens to be one of the primary reasons why the world's largest electorate finds itself disenchanted with the Congress party.

On the other hand, the Bharatiya Janata Party continues to touch new heights – be it popularity, membership or election victories. The 100-fold increase – from three seats for the Bharatiya Jana Sangh in the 1951-52 General elections to

The working committee meeting of Bharatiya Jana Sangh held under the Presidentship of Pt. D.P. Ghosh in New Delhi.

303 for the BJP in 2019 - is marked by a very practical, effective and necessary approach, one where every leader, office bearer or Prime Minister is at their very core – a karyakarta (party worker).

Any and every national, state or local leader within the Jana Sangh has one thing in common – not only are they connected with the grassroots, but they have also worked amongst the people to understand the needs, requirements and preferences of the average Indian.

Take for example, Lal Krishna Advani, a stalwart who was assigned to the BJS by the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh when he was Pracharak (full-time worker) in Rajasthan. Though Advani came from a stable economic background, when he came to New Delhi from Sindh (present-day Pakistan), he did so as a young Swayamsevak (RSS member) who had nothing to his name – fame or resources. For several years he worked tirelessly for the welfare of the people, played a significant role in the formation of the Janata Party after Indira Gandhi's government imposed the Emergency in 1975 and later, contributed immensely to the growth of the BJP towards the end of the 20th century.

Similarly, Atal Bihari Vajpayee started as a young reporter and came into the Jana Sangh fold as a political/parliamentary assistant to Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee in 1951. It was Vajpayee's work and political vision that propelled him to become a Jana Sangh MP in 1957. He then rose through the party ranks to become the Jana Sangh President in 1968, a founding member of the Janata Party and then the Bhartiya Janata Party. His rise to become the Prime Minister of India is marked not by an eminent lineage or dynastic associations but his work as a people's champion that lasted 10 terms as a Member of Parliament – each where he proudly called himself a karyakarta.

Every karyakarta who has been associated with the BJP – either during the days of the Jana Sangh or later – presents a startling similarity to this merit-based-ascent approach. The example of Dr. Bharat Bhushan Goyal who became one of the founding members of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh in 1952 as a 30-year-old activist from Saharanpur – is best suited to illustrate this aspect. He worked relentlessly in and around his village to upgrade education facilities, the railway station, the police station and the post office. It was his work which was appreciated and he was selected as the district president of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh and then of the Bharatiya Janata Party in the erstwhile Saharanpur district. On several occasions, Dr. Goyal recommended others from the party fold to contest elections while he was working towards building the party organisation and serving the people – an aspect of his life that continued till he passed away in 1994.

A special meeting in which Pt. Deendayal Upadhyaya, Bhairon Singh Shekhawat and Jagannath Rao Joshi are seen formulating subjects (1967).

Over 2,000 km away, Naorem Ram Singh joined the BJP in Manipur in 1980. At the time, the Bharatiya Janata Party was but a fledgling organisation in the Northeastern state. For Singh, therefore, his work was cut out; and he immediately dived in. Over the next few years, he worked relentlessly across the state and its rural areas – be it rains, thick jungles or non-existent roads, all that mattered to Singh was to take the BJP's message across every village in the area. By 1983, three years after the BJP was launched from Mumbai with Atal Bihari Vajpayee as its president, Singh became one of the first BJP candidates to contest local elections from Sagolband in the present-day Imphal West district. Singh continued building the organisation across the region and was elected as the region's General Secretary in 1986 from where he was promoted to the post of Vice-President of the BJP in Manipur. Be it organising a rally, editing articles in the party's monthly magazine or taking on responsibilities of membership drives, Naorem Ram Singh became the go-to man in Manipur.

But to say that the BJP was working tirelessly only in the country's northern parts would be incorrect. Take the example of V Malathi from Chennai who joined the BJS in 1970. For seven straight years, Malathi worked continuously to empower and enable women and rose to become the Mahila Morcha President of her Mandal. But a promotion meant increased responsibilities which Malathi discharged with excellence. She continued as the Mahila Morcha President of the Mandal even with the BJP till 1994, when she was chosen to lead the Mahila Morcha for the state of Tamil Nadu. Over the years, Malathi's work and her jovial demeanour endeared her to k*aryakartas* and swayamsevaks alike. When she succumbed to COVID-19 in 2020, a sea of saffron came onto roads to bid a final goodbye to a karyakarata who devoted her all to uplifting women for over 40 years.

Similarly, over in Guntur, Jupudi Hymavati joined the Jana Sangh in 1965, at the age of 30. Over the years that followed, Hymavati worked day and night to expand the footprint of the BJS amongst women in Andhra Pradesh. For several years she served as the State executive member and convener of the Mahila Morcha before she was promoted as the Vice President of the Jana Sangh's Andhra unit in 1972; a post she held until the emergency was imposed in 1975. Hymavati served on multiple posts with the Jana Sangh including the State Vice President of Bharatiya Majdoor Sangh.

Since the Jana Sangh's inception in the early 1950s to the BJP in 1980 and as the world's largest political party today – preferential treatment and dynastic authority have never been a part of the party's ideology. Like its karyakartas, the organisation also rose from amongst the people – slowly increasing its footprint across the country. The Jana Sangh began its journey with the first party units coming up in Uttar Pradesh. Interestingly, during the late 1940s and early 50s, Pandit Deendayal Upadhyay had been working relentlessly with the RSS in Uttar Pradesh, in fact, it was here that the first state unit of the BJS was formed. 'Panditji' as he was often addressed continued expanding the Jana Sangh's footprint first in UP and then later into Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Punjab and New Delhi in the mid-50s. Pandit ji rose through the ranks and was chosen as the Party's National President in 1968 after which he took the BJS to southern India.

The Jana Sangh and later the BJP have always been known for being more like a family of karyakartas working in national interest than anything else. Seen here is a scene from a party meeting that can easily be mistaken as gathering of friends over a cup of tea.

The Jana Sangh's electoral journey began right in its formative years with a vote share of 3% and 3 seats. By 1957, in just 6 years, the BJS and many of its Karyakartas who were working relentlessly to take its message across the country had managed to double the vote share to 5.97% even when it managed to win just one more seat than its last tally. In the 1962 elections, the Jana Sangh's tally went up to 14 followed by its best-ever performance of 35 seats in the 1967 General elections with a vote share of 9.31%. This meant in less than 20 years since its formation, the Jana Sangh on average was receiving almost 1 out of every 10 votes being polled across the country. By 1977, when the BJS merged with other political outfits to form the Janata Party, the coalition managed to wrest away the INC's vote share as well as its hold on the seats. The Janata Party-plus coalition won a staggering 295 seats with a vote share of over 41% - scripting history as the first non-congress coalition to win over 35% votes.

However, this hard-won victory was squandered away as the Janata Party coalition fell victim to personal ambitions. Given its unparalleled devotion to building the Nation, the Jana Sangh put aside its differences and contested the 1980 elections with the Janata Party obtaining – understandably so – a diminished vote share and seat ratio.

However, by this time, the Jana Sangh's influence had become a major force, particularly in northern India where three Chief Ministers from the Jana Sangh now presided over the state governments of Rajasthan (Bhairon Singh Shekhawat), Madhya Pradesh (Virendra Kumar Sakhlecha) and Himachal Pradesh (Shanta Kumar). Each of these three Chief Ministers came from humble backgrounds and had risen through the ranks; either with the BJS or the RSS. Bhairon Singh Shekhawat was a farmer's son who was a sub-inspector before becoming the first non-congress CM of Rajasthan. Similarly, Sakhlecha had joined the RSS at the age of 15 and was chosen as the Leader of Opposition in the MP assembly before being chosen as the Chief Minister of Madhya Pradesh. Shanta Kumar had begun his journey in politics as one of the five Panch (leaders) in a gram panchayat election and had stood by the party even when he was jailed first for his role in Kashmir agitation and then later during the Emergency (which was a common thread for each of the three.)

For a party that had carved its way through the hard work and dedication of its karyakartas towards nation-building, being accused of 'divided loyalties' (that too for purposes of political power and position), was unacceptable; to say the least.

Take the example of Raghunandan Vyas, an associate of Lal Krishna Advani in Karachi, Vyas had moved to India during the partition and continued his association with the RSS. He had taken up a post as a Hindi teacher in Rajasthan from which he resigned upon being questioned for his association with the RSS (which he unflinchingly accepted). He was part of the Jana Sangh since 1953 and contested elections from Ahore. He was later instrumental in building the Jana Sangh in areas like Jalore, Sirohi and Barmer. Without once thinking of his personal adventures, Vyas promoted many Jana Sangh candidates in elections – be it to the Gram Panchayat or the Vidhan Sabha. He had, on the Party's instruction, contested an unwinnable election from Sirohi in 1972 and continued as a member of the Rajasthan State assembly till its sudden dissolution (in addition to eight other states) in 1980 by the then re-elected Indira Gandhi-led government.

The Jana Sangh at the time was filled with many leaders both at the state as well as national level who had placed the welfare of the nation and her people above all else. This 'Nation First, Always First' ideology set the organisation apart and brought forth the Bhartiya Janata Party in 1980 with Atal Bihari Vajpayee's famous words "Andhera Chatega, Sooraj Niklega, Kamal Khilega..."

The first time that the BJP contested the General Elections in 1984, it resulted in just a shadow of its 1967 performance with only 2 Lok Sabha seats and a 7.74% vote share. To many, this would signal an end to a short national stint, but for the BJP, this meant nothing more than a reboot; a new beginning. From 1986 to 1996 was the BJP's decade as it immediately moved from 2 seats in the 1984 elections to 85 – the highest ever tally – in 1989 with a vote share of over 11.36%. It was during this decade that BJP's organisation spread its roots deep and across the country unlike any other political party before it; the reason being an almost direct connection with the people.

All this while, several Pracharaks from the RSS who were known for their organisational and networking skills, were inducted into the BJP. Amongst them was Narendra Modi, a 37-year-old Pracharak who had risen through the ranks of the RSS and came from a very humble background in Gujarat. Over the next few years, Narendra Modi worked tirelessly in establishing the BJP in Gujarat and later in northern states like Himachal Pradesh, Jammu and Kashmir, Punjab, Haryana etc. He went on to become the General Secretary (Org.) of the BJP's Gujarat unit followed by the National unit and finally being selected as the Chief Minister of Gujarat. His stellar record in Gujarat (one that continues even today) was overshadowed only by his election as the Prime Minister of India, having orchestrated two consecutive and largest-ever electoral successes in the history of the BJP and the BJS.

On its journey, however, the BJP further extended its seat share to 120 by 1991 and its voteshare to over 20% - thereby doubling down on its 1967 score which meant that two out of every 10 eligible votes on an average, were for the BJP. At the same time, the BJP's state units were performing beyond excellent, in Uttar Pradesh, the BJP had jumped from just 57 seats and under 12% vote share to a staggering 221 Assembly seats with over 31% vote share. Amongst these seats was that of Bacchi Singh Rawat from Almora (erstwhile Uttar Pradesh). Rawat had joined the Jana Sangh in 1969, when he was just 20 and had since then, decided to devote his all in service of the nation. It was his unflinching dedication to the party and its work which proved pivotal in his election to the legislative assembly. His work for the farmers of the region endeared him so strongly to the people that Rawat was elected as the Member of Parliament from the region in 1996, 1998, 1999 and 2004. The 20-year-old who had joined the Jana Sangh in 1969 went on to become the President of the Uttarakhand unit in 2007.

It was the karyakartas who proved to be the difference as the on-ground presence of BJP leaders became pivotal in helping the BJP win an additional 41 seats in the 1996 General Elections taking its tally to 161. The period of political turmoil that followed saw the BJP extend its seat share to 182 in 1998 and 1999 when it formed the government as the leader of the National Democratic Alliance. The stagnation during the 2004 and 2009 elections was the period when a resurgence of the party was being planned with leaders like Narendra Modi, now in his third consecutive term as the Gujarat CM. The announcement of Modi as the BJP's Prime Ministerial candidate marked a watershed moment with the BJP emerging a clear winner with 282 seats. While this may seem like a storybook end, the same dedication of BJP karyakartas, now part of the world's largest political outfit propelled it to a staggering 303 seats in 2019- the highest by any non-congress party in the history of the Indian republic. This meant that over half of Lok Sabha was now occupied by members of the BJP and with a vote share of over 37%: close to 4 out of every 10 eligible votes were being polled for the BJP in a country with over a billion citizens. In addition, by 2018 the BJP – either by itself or as a quintessential part of an alliance – had formed governments in 21 Indian states and UTs.

Looking back, the difference between 1951, when Jana Sangh was often ridiculed for standing up to the Congress and not having a national presence and 2019 when the lotus had bloomed in every corner and assembly of the country, was the karyakartas who had stood by the party and its unshakable ideology. More importantly, it was all the proof that anyone could need about the merit-based organisation of the BJP; a belief system that holds over 18 crore members together.

Even today, the BJP presents a unique model of the same, seamless organisational system where even the senior leaders are seen managing ground-level tasks such as being in charge of voter lists (Panna Pramukh) and membership drives (Sangathan Parv). This unorthodox system, built solely by and for a party that calls its cadre its strength, remains the finest and most interesting chapter of India's electoral history.

Undaunted in the Face of Violence

Extraordinary circumstances call for extraordinary actions. This belief is a common thread weaving numerous stories of karyakartas (party workers) who faced violence head-on, without thinking about the consequences. With the ferocious will to be ready to sacrifice even their life, they never steered away from crisis, even if the situation carried the risk of getting severely injured or in more critical circumstances, death.

There is no doubt that the presence of the party today is largely due to the efforts of those who did not act selfishly or think twice about their safety while going to face violence. Their unshaken faith guided by the party and the Jana Sangh's ideals urged them to remain undeterred during times of crisis. Despite all odds and while facing numerous challenges they did the unthinkable and stayed true to their resolution.

Sh. Umesh Acharya suffered grave injuries while protesting the Surathkal riots in Karnataka. He was also jailed for 6 months during the emergency, during which he sustained police brutality and harassment. Since his youth, he was attracted to the Jana Sangh and started actively taking part in its activities. His shop- Gayatri Tailors, often doubled up as a party office during campaigns. In 1970, he became the Mandal Secretary of the Jana Sangh. He also actively participated in the Akkigate agitation along with Sh. Kasturi Varadaraya Prabhu who came in contact with the Jana Sangh at a very young age. This instilled in him many essential qualities of philanthropy, religious pride and nationalism. His dedication to the party showed when he took charge as the first Jana Sangh president of the Surathkal Constituency. During the Krishnapur Mutt property dispute, in 1972 and the ensuing communal riots in Surathkal, there was an attempt to assassinate him which coincided with the Surathkal Bandh. He actively took part in the Akkigate agitation when the rice meant for ration shops was being illegally smuggled to Kerala. Apart from this, he also endured police brutality during the emergency when he was jailed for 6 months.

Dr. Joshi, the then BJP National President is attacked by a water-cannon during a protest demonstration in Delhi, other karyakartas, including Shri Narendra Modi are seen rushing to his aid

Sh. Dharam Bir Ji Multani migrated from Pakistan in 1947 and started his career with only a hundred rupees. Having been a part of the Jana Sangh, he contested the Municipal Committee Elections from Field Ganj, Ludhiana and won. Since then, he worked in various posts in the party. His life took a dangerous turn when he took part in the anti-Punjabi Suba movement. He was one of the many Jana Sangh workers who marched at Chaura Bazaar and was critically injured when the police fired and he got shot. After his recovery, he was jailed for participating in the movement. Not letting this event dictate the rest of his life, he let his entrepreneurial spirit guide him to start a small business stationary & bookshop after getting released and continued to work for the Sangh simultaneously. His spirit of never backing down and not giving up even after facing multiple atrocities is truly commendable.

Even when not all karyakartas were directly involved in acts of violence, they helped those injured during these dire circumstances. Their prompt actions during times of distress helped save many lives. Shri Pak. Chinnasamy from Coimbatore city, Tamil Nadu, became a swayamsevak in 1978. In 1983, when two BJP leaders- Jana Krishnamoorthy and Thirukoviloor Sundaram were attacked brutally by violent anti-national elements, he was actively involved in rescuing them and helping in their treatment in the hospital. In 1973, Sh. Narayan Singh Nishad was leading a huge procession in Patna connected to a strike in Bihar. During the procession, he was attacked and severely injured and hospitalised for a month. Once again, during the 1951-52 agitation in Udhampur, he had actively participated along with several others for a just cause and was gravely injured again. His determination to stand his ground and motivate others to do the same was instrumental in guiding several other karyakartas.

Women were not left out in contributing to the Sangh's cause. After forming Mahila units in and around the Trichur district, Radha Balakrishnan was active in the state-level development of the Mahila Mandal of the Jana Sangh. She was one of the few to pioneer women-led movements on pertinent social and political issues. During the 1970's she was actively involved in political activities in the constituency of Ponnani where Sangh workers were horrendously attacked by communal elements. Despite this, she stood fiercely alongside T.P Vinodini Amma with her electoral campaign and continued to lend support. When the emergency was declared, she was instrumental in spearheading the women-led movement against it in Palakkad. She was also arrested and remanded along with her very young daughter. When frequent attacks took place on swayamsevaks, she worked courageously to instil confidence in them. She was at the forefront of all such agitations during this period. Her small shop and residence at Guruvayoor were centres of all Sangh activities for sheltering all and providing physical and financial support to the Sangh workers. She not only possessed the spirit of never backing down but also profoundly instilled it in other women. Another instance proving this was when women joined hands to come out in large numbers to protest against the former Chief Minister K. Karunakaran during his monthly visit to Guruvayoor. It was a shock to the Chief Minister as none of his policemen could identify the protestors till the last minute. She never stopped despite repeated failures. She was so daring that when people suffered from police atrocities, she would go straight to the police station and demand the release of protesters. She was a pillar of strength that everyone could count on during emergencies. She worked irrespective of all challenges she faced within the family and also from external forces. Having assumed the responsibility of the Morcha State President, she not only displayed qualities of fierce mental and physical strength but also on multiple occasions guided many to fight for the right cause.

Sh. Samurailatpam Madhumangol Sharma developed great enthusiasm for taking an active part in various religious and spiritual discourses from a very young age. In 1965, he became an active member of the RSS and continued to work extensively for various aspects of the party.

The use of tear gas shells by the police on the BJP demonstrators during a protest rally.

Through assuming various positions in the party, he mobilised resources for multiple important projects of the Sangh. His dedication towards the party and the Sangh knew no bounds. During the emergency, he was imprisoned for 19 months under MISA but this did not stop him from losing hope and continuing working for his cause. He was instrumental in establishing the party in Manipur. In 1977, after the Emergency was lifted and subsequently when the BJP government was formed, he worked extensively to further establish the party in the state. In 1980, when communal forces threatened to disrupt peace, he was entrusted to organise the Manipur Rajya Hindu Sammelan. In the process, he was attacked by anti-Hindu groups as he was an obstacle to them but he did not let this be a setback and he successfully organised the Sammelan against all odds. He was the BJP State President of Manipur from 1984 to 1991 and also served as the National Executive Member for three consecutive terms but he faced many challenges during this period as well. The oppressive and anti-people policies of the previous state government were solely responsible for the rise of massive terrorism in the state. At that time, cases of extortion and killing of innocent people were rampant. This was when he courageously came forward to propagate patriotism and national unity through the BJP and the ideology of the Sangh. He was continuously under threat by terrorists for fearlessly working to stop extortion and killing of innocent people. In the wee hours of 11 February 1995, two terrorists came to his house and shot at him 12 times at the close range. One bullet also pierced through the booklet on integral humanism which he always carried in his shirt pocket along with one pocket size of Bhagavad Gita. Shri L.K. Advani visited his house and pronounced that he was the true 'shaheed' as he died for the cause of his motherland who gave up his life, but not the cause.

Smt. S. Satyabhama Devi became an activist for the RSS in 1966 and worked with dedication in several umbrella organisations of the Sangh. She extended all her support to her husband Saheed S. Madhumangol Sharma. She took part in all political activities in the Bishnupur and Thoubal districts of Manipur during the emergency in 1975. When her husband was jailed for 19 months due to the RSS being banned by Congress. She vehemently opposed the imposition of the emergency as a member of Jana Sangharsh Samity and she boldly organized many awareness programmes to make the people aware of the ill-conceived policies of the Congress-led government. She personally met all the karyakartas jailed during their physical production before the court and encouraged them that their stay in jail was for a good cause. She also visited the families of those who were jailed during the Emergency to fill them with inspiration. She presented a memento to Hon'ble PM Shri Narendra Modi, a book on Integral Humanism, with a bullet hole in the book. And this is the same book, that her husband always carried with him, which was tainted with a bullet hole when extremists shot him in his house.

Sh. Bhima Mandavi from Chhattisgarh became Gram Panchayat Secretary in 2003 and was elected President of the Gram Panchayat Secretary Association in 2004 of Dhantewad. He was actively involved in various activities of the Sangh and travelled to many districts to record issues being faced by people on the grassroots level to come up with best-fitted solutions. In the Bastar Lok Sabha elections in 2019, he became a Member of the Legislative Assembly. While travelling back from Shyamgiri Dantewada. He was killed by Naxalites with a landmine. Four security personnel accompanying him were also martyred during the same incident. In the end, he practised the ideals of the party to do endless service to the nation.

In West Bengal, communal violence broke out on multiple occasions. These instances of violence were mostly funded by separatist forces and organisations whose main aim was to disrupt peace and gain victory through communal violence. Despite all their strategic attacks on the workers of the Sangh that propagated One Country, One People and One Culture that led to the loss of many significant lives, they were majorly unsuccessful in killing all those who embodied the ideals of the Sangh. Sh. Jagdish Saha was a prominent social worker of the Sangh in his locality in West Bengal. There was a communal disturbance during the Durga Puja and he was killed during an outbreak of communal violence. Sh. Ajit Roy joined a Sangh Shakha (training camp) in Cooch Behar, West Bengal in 1978 and since then actively took part in various activities of Vishwa Hindu Parishad. When the BJP was formed in 1980, he was chosen as the General Secretary of District Yuva Morcha, followed by which he gained immense recognition in the political sphere. In 1996, his life was put under grave threat when he was about to be murdered during an important meeting at Balarampur, Cooch Behar he was hacked several times by goons of the opposition party. This did not stop him from contributing to other major movements of the Sangh post his recovery.

Shri Rama Nand from Solan, Himachal Pradesh was closely associated with the social activists in Udhampur and with the patriotic movements launched by RSS. He regularly visited many shakhas of the Sangh and was an active participant in the agitation of the Praja Parishad in Jammu and Kashmir. He participated in many agitations and movements and faced atrocities and lathi charges by police. Later on, he was made the Minister of State, he continued to remain active in the political sphere, not letting the instances of violence set him back from the social service he believed to be essential.

The many acts of violence faced by numerous karyakartas at various points of time in history are a testament to their unshakable faith in the ideals, instilled by the Sangh and the party. Even when it seemed impossible to hold on to the hope of life, their undeterred thoughts to do for the nation guided them and led them to do unfathomably courageous acts in the face of violence. Turning their backs to the cause or the party was not an option for these heroes. Their acts of bravery remain to be a beacon of hope for future generations.

Police personnel resort to using lathis and brute force against BJP karyakartas holding a protest rally in Delhi against the dismissal of the U.P. Government.

Gau Raksha Andolan

A large number of protestors marched through the streets of Delhi in support of the Gau Raksha Andolan on 7th November 1966 with diverse backgrounds and some facing partition experiences, but with a determination to do something for the country and preserve the culture we have inherited since time immemorial.

Although Inder Singh Namdhari had a troubled childhood, he never gave up the dream of serving the nation as a Karyakarta (party worker) of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) and later the Bharatiya Janta Party (BJP). The partition separated him from his family three times before he was reunited with them. This only reinforced his resolve to fight for the national cause and contribute to the development and growth of the country. His association with the BJS allowed him to demonstrate his exceptional oratory skills. A skill such as this brought Inder Singh to the threshold of politics. In his early twenties, he started delivering speeches on issues such as cow protection and the need to ban cow slaughter. These speeches were delivered at various platforms such as Gau Raksha Sammelan in Daltonganj, among others. Through his speeches, he was able to disseminate knowledge about the holy cows and their importance in Hindu culture. The impact of his speeches was very evident during the Gau Raksha Andolan, which saw more and more people becoming involved

Atal Bihari Vajpayee with other senior leaders on the stage, addressing the public on the anti-cow slaughter day, Young Atal ji speaking passionately about the protection of cows at a public gathering. Among the listeners are Madhav Sadashivrao Golwalkar (Guruji, the second Sarsanghchalak of the RSS) and Pt. Deendayal Upadhyay.

As far as the symbolism of cows in Hindu culture is concerned, it is more than simply an animal. As a result of worshiping and serving the cow, one is believed to attain salvation (Moksha). In the Jain religion, Adinath, the first Tirthankar, was also known as Vrashbh, which means "oxen sorub". According to Hinduism, bovines are one of the most sacred and sanctified creatures. This sense of sacredness is expressed in ancient Indian literature, such as the Vedas, Smritis, Srutis, Puranas, etc.

Thus, cow protection has been an integral part of Hinduism since ancient times. History records that Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj, the founder of the Maratha empire, cut off the hands of a Muslim butcher during his youth after observing him drag a bovine for slaughter. Chhatrapati Shivaji's son, Sambhaji Raje, executed a Muslim for killing a cow in 1683, thus inheriting the same legacy of protecting Hindu culture. Additionally, the Directive Principles of State Policy, which form the basis of the Indian Constitution, also mention cow protection and promotion.

The Andolan of 1966-67

In 1966, Hindu organisations lobbied for a ban on cow slaughter, which was subsequently enshrined in the Indian Constitution. This cause was supported by the Shankaracharya, among others, through fasting. In response to the agitation, a massive demonstration took place outside the Parliament in New Delhi on the 7th of November 1966. Swami Rameshwaranand, Member of Parliament for Karnal for the BJS, led the demonstration.

As a result of the dedicated efforts of Karyakartas of Jana Sangh from various parts of India, the Andolan was able to expand its horizons.

There were several dedicated Party workers from Uttar Pradesh that made a significant contribution to spreading the horizon of this agitation. These included Ram Sevak Tripathi from Pratapgarh, Dr. Surya Dev Pranacharya from Gorakhpur, and Rajendra Agarwal from Meerut.

The andolan was taken to the interiors of Bihar by Kamlesh Kumar Jha of Samastipur who was given the responsibility of taking it throughout the state. He was even jailed for the protest he carried out.

One of BJS's Karyakarta from Giridh, Ritlal Prasad Verma, played an instrumental role in the organisation of the agitation in the remote areas of Chhotanagpur Plateau and the surrounding areas during the agitation. It was Ritlal who took the initiative and ensured that even the remote parts of the country were integrated into the national phenomenon. This was at a time when the Government of India refused to integrate the tribal areas into mainstream society.

As part of Master Jaipal Singh Khatana's initiative, the North Eastern region of India was incorporated into this agitation, which further increased the scope of the andolan. In the course of his involvement, he was imprisoned a number of times because of his active participation.

It was Balakrishna Sharma aka Devaki Maharaj who ensured that the people of Chhattisgarh were aware of what was taking place in the state and around them and put in their best efforts to gather thousands of people into this agitation in order to show their support. It is worth noting that even after being jailed three times and subjected to police brutality, he kept providing support to the cause.

In addition to spreading the Andolan in different parts of Punjab, the late Himmat Singh also made a major contribution to the movement becoming a pan-Indian phenomenon by contributing towards the movement spreading to many other places.

A number of prominent Karyakartas also contributed tremendously to the agitation and were imprisoned several times as well as facing police brutality and other repressive measures from the Government. These included Baijnath Prasad, Balmiki Prasad Singh, Kalicharan Mafidar, Kailash Chandra Mishra, Krishnakan Rawat, Dharamveer Sharma, Mahesh Gautam, Ram Murti Veer, Babulal Gupta, Gaurishankar Kaushal, and Narata Ram Goyal.

As a result of violence outside the Sansad Bhawan (Parliament), hundreds of Hindu saints and Gau-bhakts who were agitating for the ban of cow slaughter were attacked with bullets, tear gas shells, batons, and rods. 375 Hindus were reported to have died in the firing according to the official report, although a participant in the agitation claimed that about 5000 Hindus had been brutally slaughtered as a result of the bullet spray ordered by Indira Gandhi, the then Prime Minister at the time.

It was Sabal Singh, a BJS Karyakarta who spoke about his personal experiences of the Andolan in Sonabhadra, Uttar Pradesh. He shared his personal experiences that highlighted how bravely the protestors refused to bow to the government's repressive measures and stayed true to their principles. In addition, he explained the agitation to be a non-violent protest by the aggrieved masses of India against their oppression. It was not only men, but also women who had joined in large numbers, especially from Punjab and Haryana. In support of the cause, all the protestors sat peacefully and showed solidarity. Thousands of people greeted the saints with flowers as they arrived in the city. As a result of the protests, Atal Bihari Vajpayee left the Parliament and stood on the stage in support of the protesters. During the course of Atalji's speech, the police used tear gas, lathis, bullets, and other forms of brutality to repress him.

In response to the call for a ban on the slaughter of cattle, Indira Gandhi, the Prime Minister, refused to accept it. More than 10,000 anti-cow slaughter supporters led by Hindu Sadhus attempted to storm the parliament building in support of the anti-cow slaughter movement, but were prevented from doing so by police officers. It is estimated that approximately 3 to 7 lakh sadhus and saints were attacked by the Delhi police on Indira Gandhi's instructions by spraying them with bullets, releasing tear gas shells, and charging at them with rods and batons. According to non-official estimates, the number of saints who were killed on that day in Delhi was at least 5,000.

In the immediate aftermath of the incident, it is believed that the bodies of the dead Hindus were loaded onto trucks and transported to a ridge area, outside of Delhi, in the midst of the night. Although some of them may still be alive, they were burned without even checking to see if they were alive or not.

The next day, the Times of India reported that seven people were killed and several others were injured when the police fired 209 rounds with muskets against a rampaging procession of more than one lakh anti-cow slaughter demonstrators in front of Parliament House.

It has been reported that Shankracharya Niranjandev Tirth, Swami Harihara nanda, otherwise known as Karpatriji Maharaj, and Mahatma Ramchandra Veer fasted unto death to protest the brutal killings of sadhus and Gau-bhakt devotees in Delhi. A fast of 166 days was observed by Mahatma Ramchandra Veer during this period. In the agitation against KarPatriji Maharaj in Saroh, Uttar Pradesh, some of the BJS Karyakartas, such as Pandit Rajendra Tiwari from Saroh, Uttar Pradesh, took part and fought for the noble cause. Government repression was imposed on him through the use of police brutality, severe punishments, and other forms of repression.

A very dedicated Karyakarta from Bikaner was Kripa Chand Surana, who all possible contributed to the strengthening of this movement by providing relentless support to it. Despite coming from a family of businessmen, he has always maintained a sense of doing something for the nation through the spirit of sacrifice, dedication, and generosity that he developed from a young age. Since the very beginning of his political career, he has been associated with Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS). As a representative of young people in the RSS, he played an instrumental role in executing secret activities and helping to develop the country through service work and other activities. A very important role was played by his team in the various activities of the RSS as a whole. During the establishment of the BJS party, he was one of the founding members of the organisation. There was no doubt that he played a significant role in carrying out cow protection movements across the country. During the agitation that began in 1966-67, he was a part of a group of cow protectors from Bikaner, who were led by Pujya Swami Someshwaranand, who led the group to Delhi where, together with cow protectors from across the country, under the leadership of Shankaracharya Niranjan Dev Teerth, a sit-in took place, thereafter, he was arrested. There is no limit to his contributions.

The inept handling of the issue by the government and the shooting of policemen were widely condemned. Having sensed that there was dissatisfaction among her people, Indira Gandhi sacked Gulzarilal Nanda, the then home minister, in response to the growing dissatisfaction. In his position as a revered senior figure, Nanda served twice as a caretaker Prime Minister, after Jawaharlal Nehru and Lal Bahadur Shastri passed away within a short period of time after each other. Furthermore, it should also be noted that he was also a patron of the Bharat Sadhu Samaj and was widely considered to be sympathetic to the cause of the protesters. Yashwantrao Balwantrao Chavan, the subsequent Home Minister and a puppet of Indira Gandhi, went to the fasting saints and promised to bring an anti-slaughter bill to the next session of parliament, if he was re-elected. The anti-Hindu Congress government, however, failed to fulfill the promises it made during the election campaign.

As a result of the February 1967 elections in which the Jana Sangh was able to double the number of votes it had won, Indira Gandhi knew she had to take action on this issue. Indira Gandhi set up a panel to investigate the issue of cow slaughter in 1967, under the leadership of retired Supreme Court chief justice AK Sarkar, which was tasked with investigating the issue. As part of the panel's mandate, it was established to determine whether a nationwide ban on cow slaughter might be possible in the future. In addition to RSS chief MS Golwalkar, the Shankaracharya of Puri, V Kurien from the National Dairy Development Board, and economist Ashok Mitra, a panel of experts was also comprised of members. In every election held in the country since 1951, the issue of cow slaughter has been a recurring theme.

Warriors of Independent India

The Indian Constitution guarantees to every citizen of this Republic, irrespective of his creed, caste or language, equal rights and equal opportunities. The Constitution provides for one common citizenship for all Indians. It has no place for discrimination of any kind against any citizen, and embodies the joint resolve of the Indian people to secure to all citizens full freedom and equality."

Post India's independence, there were multiple instances when the country's sovereignty and unity were challenged. During these trying times, numerous karyakartas (party worker) took it upon themselves to give their all for keeping peace intact. Defending the constitution and the country with whatever they had, Karyakartas of the Bharatiya Jana Sangh and later the Bharatiya Janata Party were unflinching in their support for India's unity and uncompromising on their ideals of One Country, One People, One Culture. The following chapter entails the stories of those karyakartas who fought relentlessly to safeguard India.

THE 'SELL-OUT' AT SHIMLA

The warmth of an emphatic and decisive victory over Pakistan had driven away the winter chills of December in 1971. On December 16 when Pakistan signed the Instrument of Surrender, the Indian Army took over 90,000 Pakistan soldiers and their sympathisers as Prisoners of War (PoW) – nearly one-third of the erstwhile Pakistani Army.

Five day hunger strike by BJP workers led by Madikkai Kammaran demanding the recognition of Kasargod as a district.

Through the brave and courageous conduct of the Indian Armed forces and the relentless push by the Bharatiya Jana Sangh to bring citizens' sentiments to the fore, an end to atrocities by the Pakistani government in Bangladesh was ensured by India's intervention. The fact that the 1971 victory had been achieved on the Eastern, Western and Northern fronts, would now ensure a lasting solution in terms of all border disputes, including the Kashmir Dispute, was a cherry on top; particularly for the BJS.

It was decided that the final and lasting agreement would be reached in Shimla (then called Simla) by 1972. However, instead of a lasting and binding agreement, what transpired with the Shimla Agreement was nothing short of squandering the hard-won leverage paid for by the blood of Indian soldiers. With Indira Gandhi at the helm, the Indian side had failed to read the signals from Pakistan, and in showing restraint, India gave up all her advances without any resolution to the Kashmir Issue. While the soldiers, sailors and pilots had given India an edge like never before, the Government had succumbed to unknown pressures and accepted all Pakistani demands, including the return of her soldiers.

From the Jana Sangh's perspective, this was a betrayal of the people and with them the nation.

Shri Sundar Singh Bhandari, the BJP's National Vice-President courts arrest in Kasargod while launching the 'Jail Bharo' (Fill the jails) movement in Kerala.

In July 1972, just over a month after the agreement was signed, the Jana Sangh resolved as follows:

SELL OUT AT SHIMLA

The Central Working Committee of Bharatiya Jana Sangh is shocked at the way the Prime Minister let down the country in Simla. Its worst fears have come true. The history of Tashkent has been repeated in worse form. What was won on the battlefield by the blood of the jawans has been bartered away at the negotiating table for a piece of paper. New uncertainties have been created about the long-settled issue of Kashmir's accession and Pakistan has been acknowledged as a party…

It has been a sell-out, pure and simple.

Where's Package Deal? – The Prime Minister went to the summit, promising to get a package-deal for a durable peace. She has lost on both counts and has wasted a golden opportunity for a mass verbiage. That a victorious country should have been asked to swallow this insult by its Prime Minister, is perhaps the first instance of its kind…

Doubtful Bilateralism - The pact is being painted as a glorious achievement because the two countries have pledged to settle their disputes peacefully through bilateral talks. The Working Committee notes that such expressions of good intentions have characterised all our agreements starting with the Inter Dominion Agreement Dec 1948 (when Pakistan's hordes were already ravaging Indian territory in Kashmir) followed by Nehru-Liaquat pact and ending with the Tashkent Declaration of 1966 – each one of which was honoured by Pakistan more in breach than in observance.

In the aftermath of the Agreement, the Jana Sangh launched nationwide demonstrations demanding that the agreement be scrapped as Pakistan had made similar promises of non-aggression and broken them at will.

For Veerabhadrappa Chikkaboodihal this was the moment of truth, growing up in Bangalore, he had witnessed the Jana Sangh fight to bring the people's voices to the fore on so many occasions, but the Shimla Agreement had come as a tipping point. Chikkaboodihal immediately launched himself with full vigour and force into the protests against the 'Sellout at Simla' in Bengaluru, thus beginning a long and fruitful association – first with the BJS and later with the Bharatiya Janata Party. He emerged as a beacon for karyakartas in Karnataka's Davanagere district.

Just a few Kilometres away, M.G. Srinivasa Rao had been in regular touch with senior BJS leaders in Karnataka. He needed a means to express his disappointment at the erstwhile government's incompetence in capitalizing on a position for which so many soldiers had sacrificed their lives. Rao played a leading role in organising protests across Karnataka against the Agreement and played an active role in giving voice to the sentiments of the people.

The story was almost similar for Basavaraj Huchhappa Dharwad, who had joined the Jana Sangh in 1968, just two years before the '71 war. However, what Dharwad lacked in years of association, he more than made up for with his enthusiastic support for the Anti-Shimla Agreement protests.

The protests came to a head when Indira Gandhi returned to New Delhi, only to face a large crowd of Jana Sangh supporters demanding an answer from the Prime Minister on why she had chosen to throw away with such disregard the victories that India's brave soldiers and people had sacrificed so much. An American newspaper reported in its International section that "Jana Sangh party called the pact a "sellout," and members of the movement clashed with Mrs. Gandhi's followers. Police used tear gas and batons to break up hostile Jana Sangh demonstrations at the New Delhi airport when Mrs. Gandhi returned".

AGAINST A FURTHER DIVISION - PUNJAB SUBA MOVEMENT

When India had to undergo a partition, Punjab and Bengal had borne the brunt as these large and prosperous areas were cleaved into two – causing one of the biggest human displacements in modern history. In Punjab, millions of Hindus and Sikhs had crossed the border with nothing but the hope of a prosperous future in a country they called their own. The division of Punjab had left a lasting impact on the culture of a region which had thrived in its vibrant and colourful diversity for several millennia.

Within just a decade of India's independence a strange demand started emanating from Punjab – one that wanted a further division of the region, this time on linguistic lines. Stranger still was the idea that this demand was based on the classification that Sikhs were somehow different from other Indians simply because they spoke a different language i.e., Hindi. Within this call for a separate state lay a dangerous undertone which could result in linguistic differences boiling over to take on religious proportions followed by a demand for a separate nation.

For the Jana Sangh, witnessing the partition of its motherland had been agonising enough, moreover, a division of linguistic lines would mean that security and rights of non-Punjabi speaking citizens of India residing in the region may come into jeopardy. It had, therefore, as early as 1955, condemned this demand by quasi-political organisations:

> …The Congress Government of Punjab under the direction of the Congress High Command, instead of firmly dealing with these separatist elements has followed its usual policy of appeasement by abjectly surrendering before these communal forces. The utterly disgraceful manner in which the ban on linguistic slogans in Amritsar was lifted and the disregard shown to the serious situation of Punjab by Central Government and Congress High Command, has completely shaken confidence of the people of Punjab in the efficacy of the Government of India in dealing with these Subversive elements.

Over the years that followed, the demand for a separate Punjabi speaking state became louder and the demonstrations for the same began taking the violent route. By the mid-1960s, the Jana Sangh was advocating against an impending reorganisation of Punjab into Punjabi, Hindi and Pahari speaking regions.

For Narata Ram Goyal from Mansa district, this reorganisation presented an awkward position as he faced another division of a region he called home, for a second time. Moreover, like many others, he could speak both Punjabi and Hindi and considered both as his native languages. Goyal, who was associated with the RSS since his childhood and brimming with feelings of National Unity, decided to raise his voice with the Anti-Punjabi Suba movement.

For Sohan Lal Garg, it presented the same situation, he had called Punjab his home and had, as a 20-year-old, witnessed the division of India in 1947. He had grown up speaking both languages and had shared his joys as well as his sorrows with the land and the people. Garg was arrested and incarcerated at the Bhatinda Jail simply for opposing the division of Punjab when he too, joined thousands of Jana Sangh Karyakartas in opposing the movement for separate state. In jail, he was joined by another Jana Sangh karyakarta, Jai Bhagwan Garg who was also incarcerated for opposing a separate Punjabi Suba (Pradesh). Although, both of them shared the last surname, they also shared the Jana Sangh ideals of One country and One culture.

With the violence now spreading across Punjab, many people – for their demand of a unified state – were now becoming victims of unchecked oppression. Amongst them was Dharam Bir Multani who had made the perilous journey from Pakistan with nothing spare a 100 rupee note. He had joined the Jana Sangh and had even emerged victorious in the Municipal Committee Election in 1955. Leading by example, Multani stood strong against police lathi-charges and indiscriminatory violence as he, like his party, held that Punjab should remain united. On one such occasion, when a protest march was being taken out in Chaura Bazar, the police threatened firing. Undeterred Mulatni marched ahead – a crack resonated throughout the bazar as the police fired and a stray bullet hit Multani on the forehead and he came crashing down. But such was the insensitivity being meted out to the Jana Sangh karyakartas that Multani was then patched up and shipped off not to a hospital but to jail.

The protests, highlighted the fault lines which would form in Punjab if the state was divided and yet, then then government paid little heed and carved out the state of Haryana, the Union Territory of Chandigarh and some Pahari speaking regions from an already divided Punjab.

The Jana Sangh, having opposed the reorganisation tooth and nail, was forced to accept the same. It did however resolve as follows from Jalandhar in 1966:

> …Jana Sangh regards the Sikhs as part and parcel of the Hindu Society. It has full trust in the patriotism of the Sikh Community. We hope that they will keep away from the pulls and leadership which may strive to sow among them the seeds of separatism.
>
> As the population of a border state, the people of Punjab have always been sentinels of India's frontiers. They have always acquitted themselves with patriotism, bravery and sacrifices. The people of Haryana have shared with them these noble qualities. Bhartiya Jana Sangh is confident that after the reorganisation, leaders of public opinion in these areas will keep up past traditions, do full justice to their new responsibilities, and will continue to work for the preservation and promotion of the basic unity of the region.

THE KASARGOD AGITATION

The State of Kerala was formed in 1956 based on the States Reorganisation Commission's Report. The State was created out of the princely states of Travancore and Cochin, the Malabar District of the erstwhile Madras province and the Kasargod District of the erstwhile princely state of Mysore.[42] The Kasaragod district came into being on 24th May 1984 and on 28th May 2013, Kasaragod and Manjeswaram Taluks divided by Kasaragod taluks and Hosdurg taluk split into Hosdurg and Vellirikunnu taluks.[43] Numerous karyakartas in Kerala contributed to the agitation against the formation of Kasargod. With a clear understanding of the Sangh's belief of One Nation, One People they marched towards eliminating all elements that worked to divide India. Even when times were tough and there was no end in sight, they stayed true to their cause and fought without letting the worry about the outcome be a deterrent.

Sh. Melathu Kunjanbu Nair was a senior leader and a 'Sahakari' of the Kasargod district. Born on 26th February 1943, he got associated with the RSS & later on with the Jana Sangh in his native village, Bedakam. He was at the forefront of the agitations organised by the Jana Sangh and the BJP which include the one against the check posts, for the formation of Kasargod district and during the emergency days. He was the Jana Sangh's panchayath committee President in Bedaduka; BJP's assembly constituency committee president at Uduma and Kasargod District Secretary of BJP. Sri Shankar Alwa's low profile but popularity for hard work from Manjeswar is well known. He was one of the leaders who were instrumental in establishing the Jana Sangh and the BJP into what it is today. He came to the limelight as the Kannur District Vice President of the Jana Sangh in 1955. His efforts coupled with his leadership qualities were crucial in strengthening the Jana Sangh and later the BJP in the Kasargod and Manjeswar assembly segments. He was at the forefront of many agitations that the Jana Sangh organised including the one against check posts and the formation of the Muslim-dominated Malappuram district. During the emergency, like many other Jana Sangh karyakartas, he was also arrested and subjected to police brutality while he was remanded at the Kannur Central jail under MISA for over 20 months.

C.M. Krishnanunni of Mankavu, Kozhikode was the Kerala state President of the Yuva Morcha during 1982-85. He was also the first state general secretary of the Yuva Morcha. During his tenure at the Yuva Morcha, he organised the first state-wide pada yatra from Thiruvananthapuram to Kasargod. The first

'Indianisation' (Bharathavalkkarana) rally of the Yuva Morcha was also organised in his tenure.

Madikkai Kammaran rose to be the State Vice President of the BJP. He was a leader with a difference. His boldness and commitment to work made him a popular leader in Kerala. He was born in a village called Madikkai, which now falls in the Kasargod district. The area was a communist fortress. A socialist in his early years, he joined the Jana Sangh in 1967-68 and became its secretary in the erstwhile district of Kannur, which was later divided into two - Kasargod and Kannur. During the period of the Emergency, he was underground but still active in the party. When the BJP was formed in 1980, he became secretary in the Kannur district. He was at the forefront of the agitation for the formation of the Kasargod district in which the BJP and the Yuva Morcha played a lead role. At a time when the Communist Party of India (Marxist) was ruling Kerala, he succeeded in ensuring the BJP's presence in the area.

Despite the Constitution guaranteeing equal rights to all citizens, there have been many forces that have threatened to break India from within. Be it linguistic, or cultural or religious differences, the belief in the ideal of One Country, One People, One Culture was ferociously defended by karyakartas. They are the true warriors of Independent India as they not only defended internal security but also prove how ordinary actions, guided by well-grounded principles can change the course of a country.

Nari Shakti for Sangathan Shakti

Throughout history, women have made an immense contribution to society, regardless of their location. In the case of India too, there are no limits to the number of such remarkable women. A few examples include Mary Kom, PV Sindhu, Ritu Karidhal, Chandrima Saha, and so on. The New India as we witness today, has women serving in paramilitary forces. The New India has women leading its space missions. From badminton to weightlifting, golf to archery, women have made a significant contribution to the country's development of the New India. India in its 75th year of independence could not have grown and developed without the contributions of its women population. Aside from these women, there have been countless other women from the Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS) and Bharatiya Janta Party (BJP) who have contributed to the creation of the culture of this New India, in different ways and over different time periods.

However, the civilizational ethos of India acknowledges the contributions made by Indian women. The lack of documentation of these women's experiences and contributions has historically diminished their role and recognition. Since the advent of BJS and then BJP, it has become the main focus of the political parties to tell the stories of the brave sacrifices made by these women Karyakartas (party workers) and to emphasize how women are the driving force behind India's growth and prosperity.

As a result of the Shyma Prasad Mookerjee's (SPM) founding of BJS in 1951-52, numerous women members of the party have contributed their lives to the party and the country's growth. They were motivated by the desire to bring about social, economic, and political development of the country. The term Swayamsevaks, which means "Those who serve selflessly," was proposed by Keval Malkani when the organisation was created. With a major focus on Uttar Pradesh, Vindhya Pradesh, and Punjab, BJS, the parent party of BJP, spread its roots first in northern parts of the country. In spite of its limited presence when it started, the party spread its vision and goals through its Karykartas.BJS and its women Karyakartas thus began their journey. Having no political background, these members came from all walks of life, but had the desire and vision to make a positive impact on society and the country. They came from a wide range of regions, including Thrissur and Jammu and Kashmir.

The diverse histories of these women reveal the rich culture and trajectory of women's leadership and activities following independence. They spoke in support of freedoms, non-discrimination, equality, liberty, core constitutional principles, and citizenship as part of the new nation.

As a direct result of the leadership, encouragement, and motivation provided by SPM, women began to take part actively in party politics and become a part of the New India. These women Karyakartas spoke out against atrocities and social prejudices in their regions and became the voice of the unheard. Additionally, they participated in national movements that were witnessed throughout the country due to the Emergency, the 1984 riots, and the Maintenance of Internal Security Act (MISA). Women Karyakartas, acting in their own capacities, attempted to build the foundation for a national party which culminated in the BJP. The story of Late Shakuntala Nayar is one such example. She was one of three members who won on the party's ticket when BJS entered elections for the first time in 1952. At the age of 26, she defeated the Congress candidate. She was elected to the Assembly in 1962 from Bahraich and subsequently became a State Minister. It was at this time that the BJS flourished in the Bahraich district. After this election, the people of Bahraich showed Shakuntala Nayar their love and support. Bahraich welcomed the incoming members of the Lok Sabha and the victorious members of all nine Legislative Assemblies with a large procession. In this election Bahraich gained representation in both the Lok Sabha and the

The Kutch Satyagraha saw women karyakartas participate actively and in large numbers. Seen here are women members of the Jana Sangh during a demonstration near the Parliament-1968

Legislative Assembly. This marked the turning point of the BJS, which eventually helped prepare the background for the BJP as well. This story is a testament to the fact that a person from a non-political background earned the trust and affection of her people and helped shape the BJP's foundation.

It is through the formation of state units that the BJS began spreading its roots. By 1957, it had won four Lok Sabha seats and seven seats at the state level in Madhya Pradesh. In the 1960s, however, Pandit Deendayal Upadhyay raised an important issue concerning the lack of women's participation in politics in Madhya Pradesh. In order to address this major concern, Kumudini Munje stepped forward and accepted responsibility. Although she had a family to take care of, she decided to devote all of her efforts to this cause to help achieve the goal of including women in politics at all levels. A woman like Kumud Tai faced significant obstacles in this regard, as at that time, participating in politics was almost impossible for women in a city like Jabalpur. It was clear to her that the escalating cost of basic necessities was one factor that would unite all the women in this region. Consequently, she embarked upon a Satyagraha (passive, non-violent protest) against inflation in order to provide w*omen with* the platform to express their concerns. Within a short period of time, the BJS in Jabalpur began to attract the attention of women workers. In 1966, Kumud Tai participated in a movement organized by the party against the Kutch Accord in Delhi along with 28 other women from her region. Having achieved a seemingly unattainable goal, Kumud Tai was appointed as a member of the executive committee of the BJS in Madhya Pradesh in 1966. Therefore, she holds the distinction of being the first female member of the State Executive and the first female State President in the history of the state. She later formed a cooperative society to provide a livelihood for poor women.

Prominent leaders of BJS began organising people's movements in states such as West Bengal, Punjab, Jammu & Kashmir, and Bihar. Against this backdrop, the experiences of these female Karyakartas can be used as an indicator of how the development has progressed since then.

Sheela Chauhan served as a member of the Praja Parishad of Jammu & Kashmir. Her involvement in the Rashtriya Sevak Sangh (RSS) activities was extensive and she played an important role in the agitation of the Praja Parishad against 'DO NISHAN, DO PARDHAN, and DO VIDHAN' (they demanded one nation, one constitution, one prime minister, and were opposed to the idea of Article 370). In the course of her satyagraha, she was jailed several times.

A woman from Udhampur took up the issue of untouchability and committed herself to empowering Dalits and ridding society of such views. In her entire life, Bhagwati Devi stood for the social cause with a strong sense of conviction. She followed the path of her husband late Dina Nath Kalsotra, who fought for the upliftment of the marginalised and weaker sections and dined with the most backward class called Mahasha, thus being referred to as Dina Nath Mahasha, despite belonging to Mahajan family in Udhampur. A collective effort by Bhagwati Devi, Paro Devi and Durga Devi led a strong stir in Udhampur, in 1952-53. Udhampur lanes were filled with thousands of ladies marching with slogans such as 'EK NISHAN EK VIDHAN EK PRADHAN' (One Flag, One Constitution, One Leader). Dharnas were also held in front of the Udhampur police station by Jammu people protesting the police torture of them in their peaceful agitation for the scrapping of the permit system so enforced by the Sheikh government.

Although the BJS remained a relatively small unit with the arrival of the communist party in West Bengal, some of its members continued to support the party and the movements that were occurring on a national scale. As a member of the BJS and the BJP, Usha Das has been associated with the organisation since 1977. Ram Mandir Movement, Teen Bigha Movement, Ram Janmabhoomi Movement, as well as many local-level gheraos and andolans were among the activities she actively participated in. Currently, as a booth level Karyakarta for the BJP, she focuses her efforts on grass root campaigns.

Among these stories is that of Kishori Devi from Munger, Bihar. Her affiliation with the BJS was inspired by the philosophy of integration of Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyaya

In Bihar, she played a critical role in the expansion of both BJS and later on the BJP. Her contribution to the JP movement (aka Bihar Movement) was significant. It was her residence that served as a focal point for political activities during this period. In addition, she led numerous women's marches during the JP movement. During the Emergency, her residence served as the center of underground activities. Her residence was raided several times by the police during this period. During this time, she spent a considerable amount of time in jail along with the active members of the Sangh. When Kailash Pati Mishra, the senior leader of the BJP, requested that she run in the 1977 elections, she declined, expressing her desire to remain in the party organisation instead. It is important to note that she has contributed significantly to the organisation of the State Bharatiya Janata Party. She was one of the founders of the Saraswati Shishu Mandir in Patna. In addition to being a member of the Akhil Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad (ABVP), she was also associated with the RSS.

As the BJS expanded its support in Gujarat, no one knew one woman would emerge from the crowd and go on to write history. A strong base of the party was established in Gujarat through the works of Hemaben Suryakant Acharya from Surendranagar. As a candidate of the BJS in the 1958 municipal elections, she was one of the 6 candidates to win a seat from the party's ticket. During the period 1958-1972, she served on the Gujarat Jana Sangh executive committee. It was in 1959 that she was appointed chairman of many interstate and intrastate committees and organisations, including the Red Cross. As a candidate for the BJS, she ran for election from the Junagarh constituency in 1975 and won against the Congress candidate, Vikramkishore Buch. Upon the formation of the Janata Morcha (People's Front) government, the Ministry of Health and Child Welfare was assigned to Hemaben. She contributed immensely in the health sector. Further, she participated in relief efforts in Morbi during the time of the Machhu dam disaster. As a result of her meritorious efforts during the rail crisis, she was awarded the Sr Jean Award by the International Rotary Club. She led the Gujarat women's team during the Kutch Satyagraha in 1968. Under the MISA, she remained under house arrest during the 1977 Emergency. In this period, she provided support to the families of arrested activists and volunteers. Moreover, she played a significant role in the work of women's organisations. Hemaben's primary task remained to involve women in the mass movement and to prepare them to take part in mass struggles. In addition to being active in a number of committees, she was also an integral part of the Nari Suraksha Committee, Gunda Anti-Corruption Committee, Anti-Corruption Front, and Anti-Partition Committee. She played an active role in the Ram Janmabhoomi movement. Throughout her career, she has contributed to the education of women and to the safety and security of women. Her work in the Junagarh district included the construction of brahmo samaj hostels for girls. In addition to ensuring the education of the girls, she played a significant role in ensuring their bright futures. Throughout her career, she maintained a strong commitment to public works and worked for the public's welfare.

It should be noted that, despite BJS's dominance in the northern part of India, Karyakartas throughout the country continued to work towards achieving the objectives and contributing to the overall development of the nation. Even from State's like like Kerala, some of its women Karyakartas have made significant contributions to society. TP Vinodini Amma of Thrissur is one such woman. Along with her husband, she joined RSS to bring about a transformation in society, particularly pertaining to the religious divide in the region. Her work since then has been to promote social upliftment and to spread BJS work in and around her hometown. Initially, she served as the office bearer for the Malappuram district of the party. She ran for election in 1971 from the Ponnani constituency. The communalists within the Congress party attacked Vinodini Amma and Radha Balkrishnan during the campaign. Despite all odds, both candidates continued their campaign. During her tenure in Malappuram district, she worked to establish Mahila units. After that, she became involved in the development of Mahila Mandals of BJS at the state level. She was also one of the main organiser of the first state mahila convention of the party in 1971. Through her support and encouragement for women and children from all walks of life, Vinodini Amma built confidence in them so that they could recover from their cultural and financial plight. In response to the declaration of Emergency, a mahila movement was sparked and she was one of the main women leaders who spearheaded the protest. In the course of the protest in Aluva, she was arrested and remanded in custody under the DIR. She was later given the responsibility of Rashtra Sevika Samithi. During her tenure as Prantha Karyavahika and Prantha Sanghachalika, she ensured that there were Sevika Samithi Sakhas located throughout Kerala, primarily along the coastline. Thus, the people of the area gained greater confidence. In the meantime, she ran for the Panchayat election on the Janata Party ticket and served two consecutive terms as a member. In addition to being on the planning advisory board, she was a member of the social welfare board and had been involved in several development projects in the area. In this period, she was at the forefront of all agitations. The Tali Temple agitation and Nilakkal church dispute are two notable agitations. In the Nilakkal issue, she was in charge of the women's movement. In a notable instance, women protestors came out in large numbers during the monthly visit of then Chief Minister K Karunakaran to Guruvayoor to protest against him. The Chief Minister was shocked because none of his policemen were able to locate the protestors until they reached him. Consequently, he brutally manhandled the mahila team as a means of expressing his fury. Some of the women dared to retaliate by getting so close to the chief minister, who was enjoying the immoral attacks on young protestors, and gave him a taste of the brutal beatings they were receiving.

The villagers of Punnayoorkulam remember TP Vinodini amma as their mother. After decades of her demise, many continue to follow her path due to her motherly affection, generosity, selfless service, boldness, and leadership capacity.

Through its Karnataka unit, the BJS expanded its activities in and around this state. Among all the southern states, this region saw the greatest number of people associated with the party and its state unit. In this regard, Padmani from Kolar, was one of the Karyakartas who made a significant difference through her work. She was a dedicated party worker who became involved in party activities when she was in her early thirties. During the party's infant phase, she was an honest party worker who was instrumental in organising the base of the party in the KGF (Kolar Gold Field) area of Bangalore. She was active in many social movements around Kolar, in addition to expanding the membership of the party. She was actively involved in the Ram Janmabhoomi Movement. Aside from leading the procession of Lord Rama's idol, she was also involved in the Rail Rokko Andolan in KGF Bangarpette, for which she was imprisoned. All the Karyakartas were inspired by her as she was instrumental in establishing BJS and BJP in her district with the ultimate objective of building a strong nation.

The Bombay region has always been an active ground for political activity. There were many exemplary leaders in this region, including Bal Gangadhar Tilak, Jyotiba Phule, Savitribai Phule, Vasudev Balwant Phadke, and Vinayak Damodar Savarkar. Even though they belonged to other parties at the time, they contributed immensely to the independence struggle and development of the country. Similarly, Vijaya Vasant Bhonsale, a Karyakarta from this region, has made tremendous contributions and left a lasting impression in her capacity. Prior to joining the BJS, she took part in the 1942 movement in her individual capacity. In the years following the creation of the party, she took part in the Kutch Satyagraha, the Simla Agreement Satyagraha, and the Mahila Morcha Satyagraha in Mumbai. During the Emergency, she was imprisoned twice - for a period of 13 months and another for a period of nine months.

During the hoisting of the national flag in Kashmir, she played a significant role. During Ayodhya Kar Seva, she participated twice. She had also participated in the Pratapgad movement. In addition, she has served as a member of Rahuri Agricultural University, Pune All India Radio Freedom Fighter High Commissioner, Maharashtra State Social Welfare Corporation Advisory Committee, Vigilance Committee, Joint Committee, and Food Supply Committee as well. Moreover, she participated in the Nimgaon agitation of the Pratapgad Festival committee. Working in different capacities depending on the needs of the party, she actively participated in the protection of cows.

Despite taking up so many pertinent issues and fighting in areas, their names do not appear anywhere. There is no end to the list of such warriors. Despite all the odds, these women displayed exemplary performance, fought social bias, and did not give up on the goals they set for themselves.

SEVA HI SANGATHAN

In India, humanitarianism has been an integral part of its culture since time immemorial. It is a land that has produced innumerable sons and daughters who have dedicated their lives to the service of the people and other forms of life. Throughout its history, India has played a prominent role in demonstrating its humanitarian qualities both at home and abroad. As the entire world struggled with COVID-19, India stepped forward and offered its support in the form of Vaccine Maitri to people around the globe. In addition to being one of the leading contributors to UN peacekeeping operations, the country also provides humanitarian aid and assistance to countries in need. For India, every creation of Mother Earth has always been regarded with deep respect. Humanitarianism is deeply ingrained in the people of India, and parties such as the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) and its parent organisation, the Bharatiya Jana Sangh (BJS), adhere to humanitarianism as one of their core values. Throughout history, party workers (Karyakartas) have displayed exceptional humanitarian efforts to serve the Indian people. With time, this aspect of helping others and respecting the essence of humanity has only been enhanced. The Karyakartas, across all generations, classes, and castes, have made every effort to demonstrate this side of their character.

A Karyakarta who lived by the maxim of public service was D Mani. As an active member of Jana Sangh since 1975, he courageously opposed Indira Gandhi's draconian measures in 1975 when she had imposed the Emergency. His determination to not succumb to injustice committed towards the people of India despite all the atrocities committed against him under the MISA Act was unwavering. He immediately devoted his time and effort towards the Trichy Flood Relief works in 1978 after the burning issue of emergency had subsided. Together with other Karyakartas, he constructed houses within a two-month period for the flood victims. His dedication was such that he continued to work for the public even after he retired from active politics on health grounds.

A notable individual who despite all odds dedicated his entire life to public service is Bandopant Joshi of Mumbai, who began his journey as a BJS Karyakarta and later served as a BJP member. Being born into a humble family and having faced many challenges since childhood, he did not let those challenges discourage him from his goal of serving humanity. Although his shop was submerged during the Godavari floods of 1969, he did not think for a moment about his loss and began rescuing others, including animals. Immediately following the rescue, he began the process of providing food and rehabilitation for the affected individuals. He was a Karyakarta who placed others above himself and devoted his life to the service of all life forms.

It is well known that, throughout the history of India, famines and droughts have plagued the nation on a number of occasions. Whether it was the Great Famine of 1876-1877, the Bengal Famine of 1943, or for that matter the severe drought and famine conditions in Rajasthan in 2002. The BJP workers have tirelessly worked to provide aid and support to the victims of such calamities. Among these Karyakartas, Ajit Mandan deserves special mention. When Rajasthan was facing a crisis in the year 2002, he embarked on a journey to protect cow progeny by supplying them with fodder and water. In addition, he made special efforts to protect the wild animals in the Aravali Mountains. It is rare to see such instances, where individuals took extraordinary measures to provide relief to animals in distress.

An unexpected shock on 26th January 2001 froze the Indian people in their tracks. Immediately upon the Bhuj Earthquake that occurred on India's Republic Day, while the nation was attempting to come out of the grief of such a disaster, Ajit Mandan began his relief efforts. Using the cooperation of the public, he distributed one crore rupees of relief material to the earthquake victims in Gujarat and Tamil Nadu (a huge sum of money in 2001, and using it for a noble cause was unimaginable), and he paid close attention to their treatment. Considering the dedication of people like him to the service of humanity, words fail to do him justice.

While Ajit Mandan was actively involved in humanitarian efforts in the western part of the country, one Karyakarta from Sadiya (Assam) took up the baton and embarked on a humanitarian journey in the eastern and north-eastern parts of the country. As a member of RSS beginning in 1949 and becoming a member of the Jana Sangh in 1964, Trilokiya Nath Gautam's lifelong endeavour was social work. As early as the 1950s, his contribution to humanity could be witnessed in his active relief efforts in Sadiya following a powerful earthquake. His tireless efforts to assist them in returning to mainstream society ranged from providing them with food and shelter to providing them with employment opportunities.

Many people believe that people's true character is revealed in times of distress. Millions of people faced desperate situations as the world was engulfed in the thick blanket of COVID-19. It was a tragic event that resulted in the loss of millions of lives. Some people shone brightly during this period of darkness, providing a ray of hope that was much needed. The late Jogendra Prasad Lall was a fearless fighter, who accomplished something that only can be imagined in books or movies. He resigned from his government position and began contributing to the welfare of the people of his state, Odisha. As a member of ABVP, he was actively involved in all of its activities. As a result of joining this organisation, he was able to further his goal of service. Despite giving up his position, he was able to provide hundreds of jobs to people in rural and remote areas of Odisha. In order to provide his people with basic amenities, he constructed roads, bridges and dams. He provided assistance and support to the people of Odisha during the pandemic. By narrating motivational stories, singing bhajans, and acting and directing plays, he sought to illuminate the lives of his people during this period of darkness. He served the people to the very end of his life.

Apart from its significance as a part of the Indian struggle for independence (Subhash Chandra Bose captured these islands and named them Shaheed and Swaraj Islands), what is so special about the Andaman and Nicobar Islands? The name of R Mohanji, a prominent member of Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) before joining the BJP, cannot go unnoticed. A committed member of the BJP who contributed immensely to the party's various initiatives. In the wake of the 2004 Tsunami which caused havoc throughout the country and in particular on the islands, he wasted no time in providing relief assistance. The tailor, who was given food and shelter and later rehabilitated at Port Blair, remains indebted to Mohanji for his assistance. Similarly, he supervised the reconstruction of the islands and provided rations and shelter to hundreds of families. Who would have thought that such a remote part of the country had such an individual like Mohanji, who devoted his life to the betterment of society as a whole.

At a time when the whole of India was trying to cope up with the pandemic situation, when youth and children were taking on new activities and hobbies to hone their skills, one youth decided to dedicate his life to the cause of the people of India. At such an early age, Punit Aggarwal, a bright youth from Chennai, took this situation on a positive note. During this time, he interacted with over 5,000 children, creating an awareness about safe behavior and promoting confidence within them. Taking into account the difficulties and issues young people may be experiencing during this period, he conducted meetings with various district authorities, including Child Protection and Child Development officials, to ensure they receive proper care and protection, particularly those living in shelters. To assist children in coping with COVID-19-induced stress, he launched 'Samvedana,' a toll-free tele-counseling program. His other notable contributions in this direction include-Support in the implementation of PPP Model (Promotion of cultural event Primordial health with Periodical screening); distribution of 4,23,000 free masks to people across the state of Tamil Nādu; distribution of Emergency medical kits to the under privileged; Delivering 500 nutritive kits for poor pregnant and lactating mothers during international breastfeeding awareness week; providing food for 200 poor people every week (this has been carried on for the past 10 years now); providing food for 300 senior citizens every month (for the past 6 years) and raising awareness on women specific PM welfare schemes. Punit Aggarwal is not just an inspiration for children, but for people of all ages, classes, and races,

These are just few names in the long list of selfless service of BJS and BJP Karyakartas who rush to the front lines whenever any natural disaster or calamity strikes. The inspiration of millions of such Karyakartas is Prime Minister Modi himself who, through his rescue efforts during the Morbi floods in late 1970s to his untiring efforts during the Gujarat earthquake in 2001, has demonstrated the uplifting possibilities inherent in the selfless acts of seva. Prime Minister Modi was among the first to be on the ground during the Uttarakhand floods in 2013 as was the case during the Kashmir floods in 2014. The personal involvement of PM Modi, right down to monitoring the minutest detail during rescue operations from war torn countries like from earlier Yemen or more recently from Ukraine are all reflective of the spirit of seva bhav ingrained in each Karyakarta of the BJP. It is this seva bhav that sets apart the BJP from other political parties.

Shri Premlal Sinha was an RSS Swayamsevak since childhood. Being associated with the ideology of the RSS, he was harassed by the Congress government. The work of the organisation was difficult while being a teacher in government service, so in 1960, he resigned from the school post and became a full time worker of Bharatiya Jana Sangh. Due to his loyalty and duty towards the organisation, he never bowed down to the pressure from Congressmen. To earn a living, he opened a cycle puncture shop, and he remained firm even in financial constraints. From Gariaband to Devbhog, he continuously migrated to strengthen the organisation. He even had to go to jail due to the Emergency in 1975. He was recognized as a brilliant speaker, an active worker, and he faithfully discharged his various responsibilities in the BJP.

Simple, easy and soft-spoken Shri Ashok Bajaj is a loyal worker of BJP. Apart from organisation, he has long experience of working in cooperative movement and Panchayati Raj institutions. During Emergency, Mr. Ashok Bajaj saved many people from arrest by sheltering them in his village. During 1977 Lok Sabha elections, he did not succumb to panic & the fear of the government and gave the keys of the house and ensured inauguration of Abhanpur election office of the party.

Organisational activities - in 1980, he was made the General Secretary and strengthened the organisation in the village, increased the base of the Bharatiya Janata Party.

He was appointed District President of BJYM- Raipur Rural till 1990. He was elected District President for four periods i.e. 1990, 1992, 1997 and 2000 and discharged this responsibility till 2004.

In the year 2005, he was nominated as the convener of the State Cooperative Cell and remained in this post for 15 years and raised the flag of BJP in the cooperative sector. He has a long experience of working in cooperative institutions and three-tier Panchayati Raj Institutions,

In the Ekta Yatra in 1992 and he went to Jammu with the workers. He participated in the movements regarding public problems and was arrested many times. He did public awareness against intoxication and started a massive movement for drug addiction by giving the slogan "नशा है खराब : झन पीहू शराब"

Since childhood, Pandit Vishram Prasad Tiwari was very intelligent and a good scholar of Sanskrit. He was well versed in logic and reasoning. During his youth, Pandit ji was influenced by Swami Dayanand Saraswati, Swami Vivekananda, and Shri Ram. Along with Shrimad Bhagwat Katha, Pandit ji was considered to be the master of the Vedas! Being a Swayamsevak from adolescence, Pandit ji had an intense feeling of patriotism and public welfare. When emergency was declared, Pandit ji was imprisoned for protesting. For 39 years straight, he used to organize a 3-day Gayatri Mahayagya in the month of Paush. He started a campaign to oppose animal sacrifice, and after this animal sacrifice had stopped in his region. Pandit ji also played a very remarkable role in the construction of Shri Ram Mandir – he used to organize village level events on why it is necessary to build Shri Ram Mandir. He used to give free diabetes treatment throughout his life, and people from far and wide used to come to his residence to get free medicines. Pandit ji is famous by the name of Bawa Maharaj, and even today people remember his work, his service, his true devotion towards Sanatan Dharma!

Shri Jhumar Lal Tavari played an active role for the Sangh. He contested the assembly elections from Sanjari Balod assembly constituency, and always took care of incidents happening in the area. He also connected many workers to the Sangh. During the Emergency in 1975, both Jhumarlal Tavari, and his son Bhanwar Lal Tavari went to jail under MISA. He was also very dedicated to protecting cows. He was the president of the International Agricultural Cow Environment Protection Council, and he led 130 movements across the country for cow service, during which he was jailed 43 times. Through Gau Raksha Yatra in 13 districts of Chhattisgarh from 14th October to 15th November 2000, he raised public awareness on the need for protecting cows. He also participated in the cow protection movement in Andhra Pradesh and West Bengal. Shri Krishna Gaushala in Durg is among the prominent gaushalas established due to his efforts. He contribution for the welfare of cows in Durg Bhilai area has been a source of inspiration for the society.

He never told his problems to anyone. He used to consider rearing and serving the cow as his religion, and he used to do it very sincerely. Because the image of the organisation is visible in the image of that person, during his journey from Jana Sangh to BJP, he molded his daily routine to reflect the priorities of the organisation. The most important work to win an election is campaigning, Ramkrishna Nirvani ji devoted his whole life to the nation and dedicated his life till his last breath to increase the base of the Jana Sangh and Bharatiya Janata Party. Since the inception of Bharatiya Jana Sangh, he played an active role in carrying forward the work and ideology of the Jana Sangh. From the very beginning, he has been the pillar of his district. He quickly gained fame as a strong political leader and thinker. With sharp intelligence, wonderful social and political acumen, he lived his life as a karma yogi, fully devoted to society, religion and politics. He expanded the organisation, prepared new youth workers and never compromised on principles. During the Janata Party's rule, he was very active and popular as the District Minister of the organisation. He also played an active role in the reconstruction of Shri Satyanarayan Mandir and Shri Satyanarayan Dharamshala. During the emergency, his residence was the shelter for underground workers, and the focal point of information. He is still remembered for being sharp, simple, diligent reflective and eloquent.

During his initial days, Shri Nar Narayan Singh's life was a struggle. He joined the Jana Sangh, and together with its founder members, he did the work of taking the ideas of the Jana Sangh to the villages. After completing his legal studies, he became a lawyer in the District Court Ambikapur, and had a far-reaching reputation as an impeccable criminal lawyer. In 1975, during the Emergency, to avoid arrest, he reached his village in Bihar and from there to Delhi, but in Ambikapur Surguja, his family members started being harassed by the police, and were put in jail. His fellow lawyer who supported him were also arrested. Seeing the trouble at home, he surrendered to the Ambikapur police and was sent to jail under MISA. In the 1975 assembly elections, he won by such a margin that he forfeited the deposits of all the candidates, including the Congress. In the year 1979, he was made Minister of State for Home and Law and Legislature. Prior to this, he was elected as a councilor in the Ambikapur municipality. When the BJP was formed in 1980, he became the district president of Surguja district.

Shri Moreshwar Rao Gadre was associated with the Sangh like childhood. He was very well-organized, disciplined, and helped in strengthening the foundation of the organisation. He always used to lead from the front. To propagate the ideology of the Sangh in an important center like Raipur, there was no one as suitable as him. When Indira Gandhi declared Emergency, the IB had an eye on him, but he went underground as a medical representative. Helping sick and struggling families, colleagues, and friends with his own payroll had become his routine work. In these terrible circumstances, his health started deteriorating, and shortly afterwards, he attained his martyrdom. He enrolled hundreds of families and students for the Sangh and prepared a large army of hardworking, energetic and disciplined workers. His dedication made Chhattisgarh a saffron stronghold. Raipur will always be indebted to Moru Bhaiya, who laid a strong foundation for the Sangh.

भाजपा के पूर्व प्रदेश अध्यक्ष राजस्थान

स्व. श्री मदन लाल सैनी

कार्यकाल : 29 जून 2018 से 24 जून 2019

जन्म : 13 जुलाई 1943 स्वर्गवास : 24 जून 2019

राजस्थान भारतीय जनता पार्टी के प्रदेशाध्यक्ष श्री मदनलाल सैनी का सोमवार 24 जून 2019 को निधन हो गया। 76 साल के सैनी कुछ समय से बीमार थे। 21 जून को उन्हें ईलाज के लिए दिल्ली स्थित एम्स अस्पताल ले जाया गया था। उससे पहले जयपुर के एक निजी अस्पताल में उनका ईलाज चल रहा था। उन्हें फेफड़ों में इंफेक्शन की शिकायत थी।

मदनलाल सैनी का जन्म 13 जुलाई 1943 में पुरोहितों की ढाणी, सीकर में एक साधारण किसान परिवार में हुआ। आपके पिताजी का नाम श्री बालूराम जी सैनी एवं माताजी का नाम श्रीमती मोहनी देवी है। श्री सैनी की शादी 21 मई 1961 को पतासी देवी के साथ हुई थी। उनके एक बेटा एवं 6 बेटियां है। उनके पिता सीकर जिले के एक प्रभावशाली समाजसेवी थे।

माननीय मदन जी भाईसाहब बहुत ही मृदुभाषी एवं आत्मीय स्नेह से परिपूर्ण व्यवहार कुशल व्यक्तित्व के धनी थे। उन्होंने सामाजिक व विभिन्न संगठनों एवं क्षेत्रों में सक्रिय सहभागिता निभाते हुए अपनी विशेष पहचान कायम की और संगठनों को ऊंचाईयों तक लेकर गये। उनके सहयोग एवं स्नेह को सदैव सभी चाहने वाले लोगों ने सराहा है। भाजपा के प्रदेशाध्यक्ष पद पर रहते हुए आपने समस्त दायित्वों का पूर्ण निष्ठा से निर्वहन किया।

आदरणीय भाईसाहब हम सब के प्रेरणा स्त्रोत रहे है। उनके जीवन की सादगी समस्त कार्यकर्ताओं के लिए प्रेरणा स्त्रोत रहेगी। उनके निधन से हमें जो क्षति हुई है वह अपूर्णिय है।

मेरे जीवन की संक्षिप्त सामाजिक/राजनैतिक गतिविधियाँ -

- वर्ष 1960 में मेरे द्वारा बीगोद में आर.एस.एस. की शाखा का शुभारम्भ किया गया | यह शाखा आज भी सुचारू रूप से सफलता पूर्वक चल रही है |
- सहकारी समिति, बीगोद का अध्यक्ष रहते हुए कार्यकाल पूरा किया |
- पंचायत बोर्ड बीगोद, के वार्ड मेम्बर पर कार्य किया |
- श्री शिवचरण माथुर (पूर्व मुख्य मंत्री, राजस्थान) के कार्य क्षेत्र बीगोद, मांडलगढ़ (भीलवाड़ा) में पुलिस स्टेशन हेतु अनाधिकृत रूप से जमीन अधिग्रहण करने के विरोध में बीगोद कस्बा 10 दिनों तक बंद रखा गया तथा इसके कारण मुझे इस अवधि में जेल में डाल दिया गया | मेरे इस संघर्ष के परिणाम स्वरूप मांग को मानते हुए आपसी समझोते के आधार इस अनाधिकृत रूप से अधिग्रहण की गई जमीन को निरस्त किया तथा मांग के अनुसार त्रिवेणी के रास्ते पर, अन्य जमीन पर पुलिस स्टेशन बनाने के फैसला किया गया | यह फैसला होने के बाद मुझे रात्रि 11:30 बजे जेल से बरी किया गया तथा बीगोद कस्बा की पिछले 10 दिनों से जारी हड़ताल समाप्त हुई |
- राजस्थान रोडवेज द्वारा एक रुपया किराया बढ़ाने के विरोध में रोडवेज बस स्टैंड,भीलवाड़ा के बाहर लेट कर चक्काजाम किया गया | इसके कारण भीलवाड़ा पुलिस द्वारा मुझे गिरफ्तार करके पुलिस लाईन में रखा गया तथा उसी दिन बरी किया गया |
- वर्ष 1975 में देश में लगे आपातकाल के विरोध में धरना-प्रदर्शन करने के कारण सरकार ने डी.आई.आर. के तहत गिरफ्तार किया गया तथा भीलवाड़ा कारागार में बंद कर दिया गया और आपात काल हटने के बाद ही रिहा किया गया |
- वर्ष 2018 में तत्कालीन राजस्थान - सरकार द्वारा "लोकतंत्र सेनानी" सम्मान से नवाजा गया |

श्री जुगल तापड़िया

मात्र 13 वर्ष की आयु में संघ की शाखा में स्वयंसेवक के नाते अपनी सामाजिक यात्रा आरम्भ करने वाले जुगल तापड़िया ने 1971 में जोधपुर के राजकीय स्टेडियम में तत्कालीन भारतीय जनसंघ के प्रान्तीय अधिवेशन के दूसरे दिन युवा संघ के समागम में मंच से अपने विचारों को बेबाकी से प्रस्तुत कर सभी का ध्यान आकर्षित किया, तब मंच पर युवा संघ के प्रदेश महामंत्री श्री राजेन्द्र गहलोत एवं एक अन्य पदाधिकारी श्री देवराज बोहरा भी मंच पर उपस्थित थे और तब से इन दोनों नेताओं से गहन सम्पर्क व इनकी प्रेरणा से जनसंघ से सक्रियता से जुड़ने का सौभाग्य प्राप्त किया। साथ ही साथ कॉलेज विद्यार्थी के नाते अखिल भारतीय विद्यार्थी परिषद् से भी जुड़े। श्री जुगल तापड़िया का जन्म माहेश्वरी समाज के साधारण परिवार में दिनांक 10 जनवरी, 1956 को जोधपुर शहर में हुआ।

संघ के विभिन्न दायित्वों का निर्वहन करते हुए आपने 1971 में विधानसभा के चुनाव में जोधपुर शहर से जनसंघ के प्रत्याशी श्री गुमानमल जी लोढा एवं 1972 के लोकसभा चुनाव में जोधपुर से निर्दलीय प्रत्याशी राजमाता कृष्णा कुमारी के चुनाव में श्री राजेन्द्र गहलोत, देवराज बोहरा, दामोदर जी बंग, हीराचन्द जी बोहरा आदि के सानिध्य में सक्रियता से भाग लिया। वर्ष 1971–1972 में संघ के प्रथम वर्ष व द्वितीय वर्ष ओ.टी.सी. की।

आपातकाल (1975–77) में मीसा के तहत गिरफ्तार होकर पूरे 19 माह तक केन्द्रिय कारागाह जोधपुर में नजरबंद रहने के कारण इनकी स्नातक की पढ़ाई बाधित हुई । केन्द्रिय कारागाह जोधपुर में ही उन दिनों अनेक वरिष्ठ नेताओं एवं पदाधिकारियों से सघन सम्पर्क हुआ और उनके सानिध्य में ही राजनीतिक विचार शक्ति का विकास संभव हो सका। पूर्व उप मुख्यमंत्री राजस्थान श्री हरिशंकर भाभड़ा, पूर्व मंत्री राजस्थान सरकार श्री बिरदमल सिंघवी, प्रो. केदार शर्मा, पूर्व विधानसभा उपाध्यक्ष श्री रामनारायण विश्नोई, दामोदर जी बंग, हीराचन्द जी बोहरा, श्रीदेवराज बोहरा, श्याम आर्य, शारदा शरण सिंह, शंकरराज लोढा श्री रेवाचंद पहिलाज राय, राधाकिशन रस्तोगी, ब्रहमदेव बोड़ा आदि के साथ जेल में रहते हुए इनसे बहुत कुछ सीखा, यानि ये लोग ही इनके राजनीतिक जीवन के प्रेणा स्त्रोत रहे है।

तत्कालीन जनता पार्टी एवं पश्चात् भारतीय जनता पार्टी की युवा शाखा में अत्यधिक लम्बे समय तक प्रदेश एवं जिले के विभिन्न पदों पर रहते हुए अपने दायित्व को बखुबी निर्वहन किया। वर्तमान में भारतीय जनता पार्टी जोधपुर शहर जिले में कोषाध्यक्ष के पद कार्य कर रहे है।

विभिन्न सामाजिक संस्थाओं में भी अपनी उपस्थिति दर्ज करा रहे श्री जुगल तापड़िया वर्तमान में प्रदेश के प्रमुख आर.टी.आई. कार्यकर्ता के रूप में राष्ट्र की सेवा कर रहे है। साथ ही पत्रकारिता एवं लेखन के क्षेत्र में भी अपनी प्रदान कर रहे है।

स्व. वैद्य श्रीवल्लभ शास्त्री जी बाड़मेर जिले के सबसे पुराने स्वयंसेवक

राष्ट्रीय स्वयं सेवक संघ में शास्त्री जी का प्रवेश डीडवाना (राज) में सन्1946 में हुआ। भारत में कांग्रेस सरकार द्वारा राष्ट्रीय स्वयं सेवक संघ पर संपूर्ण भारत में प्रतिबंध लगा दिया था। उस प्रतिबंध को हटाने के लिए संपूर्ण भारत में सत्याग्रह प्रारंभ किया गया था। शास्त्री जी पूर्व उपमुख्यमंत्री राजस्थान सरकार श्रीमान् हरिशंकर जी भाभड़ा के साथ संघ सत्याग्रह 1948 में गिरफ्तार हुए। शास्त्री जी को जोधपुर केन्द्रीय कारागृह में बंदी बनाए रखा। राष्ट्रीय स्वयं सेवक संघ पर पूर्ण प्रतिबंध हटाने पर कारागृह से रिहा किया गया। राष्ट्रीय स्वयं सेवक संघ के राजस्थान प्रांतिय प्रौढ़ शिविर किशनगढ़ (राज) 20 अप्रेल 1984 में बाड़मेर की ओर से भाग लेने का सौभाग्य प्राप्त हुआ।

- अनुसूचित जाति, अनुसूचित जनजाति सम्मेलन श्रीमान स्व. भैरोसिंह जी शेखावत एवं श्रीमान् स्वर्गीय सुंदरसिंह जी भंडारी की अध्यक्षता में जटियाबास बाड़मेर में किया गया था।
- जनसंघ कच्छ आंदोलन दिल्ली सन् 1965 में शास्त्री जी ने बाड़मेर की अगुवाई की थी।

आदरणीय शास्त्री जी का जनसंघ एवं भाजपा में रहते हुए कांग्रेस के साथ संघर्षपूर्ण जीवन एवं प्रदर्शन

- जनसंघ एवं भाजपा के विस्तार के लिए पार्टी के कार्यक्रमों के अनुसार सभी कार्यकर्ताओं के साथ पांच बार जेल यात्रा, 153 जुलूस एवं प्रदर्शन, 265 आम सभा, 52 बार धरना, 12 बार भूख हड़ताल, 11 बार बाड़मेर बाजार बंद, 4 बार रेल रोको अभियान में शास्त्री जी की अग्रणी एवं महत्वपूर्ण भूमिका रही।
- 1968 में पूर्व प्रधानमंत्री स्व. इंदिरा गांधीजी के बाड़मेर आने पर जनसंघ का शिष्ट मंडल आदरणीय शास्त्री जी के नेतृत्व में मिला। जिसमें शास्त्री जी ने सीमावर्ती बाड़मेर जिले की ज्वलंत समस्याओं को उनके सम्मुख रखा।
- शास्त्री जी बाड़मेर नगर पालिका चुनाव सन् 1962 में सर्वप्रथम जनसंघ की टिकट पर जीत कर आए थे। सन् 1972 में जनसंघ के टिकट पर चुनाव जीते थे। 1962 में भाजपा के टिकट पर बाड़मेर नगर पालिका के चुनाव लगातार जीते थे।

आयुर्वेद चिकित्सा का महान अनुभव

चूंकि शास्त्रीजी पेशे से आयुर्वेद चिकित्सक थे। उनका संपूर्ण जीवन ही मानव सेवा में लगा रहा। शास्त्री जी सभी धर्म, जात–पात, मजहब, राजनैतिक द्वंद्व को भूलाकर आयुर्वेद चिकित्सक के रूप में रोगी व्यक्ति को निरोगी बनाना अपना सबसे बड़ा स्वधर्म समझते थे।

- रेगिस्तानी क्षेत्र की जड़ी–बूटियों का स्वास्थ्य पर प्रभाव पर अनेक वर्षों तक शोधकार्य शास्त्री जी ने किया।
- आयुर्वेद सम्बन्धी संस्थाओं से शास्त्री जी का जुड़ाव :–
  - राजस्थान प्रदेश वैद्य सम्मेलन कार्यकारिणी सदस्य जयपुर
  - अध्यक्ष जिला वैद्य सभा बाड़मेर
  - पूर्व सदस्य इंडियन मेडिसिन बोर्ड राजस्थान जयपुर
  - उपाध्यक्ष कोमी एकता कमिटी बाड़मेर राजस्थान
  - उपाध्यक्ष प्राइवेट चिकित्सा समिति गंगापुरसिटी
  - आजीवन सदस्य निखिल भारत–वर्षीय आयुर्वेद विद्यापीठ नई दिल्ली
- पश्चिमी राजस्थान के एकमात्र व्यक्ति जो इंडियन मेडिसिन बोर्ड के सदस्य रह चुके थे। देशी दवाखाना बाड़मेर पश्चिमी राजस्थान का एकमात्र ऐसा स्थान जहाँ काष्ट

Shri Vidyasagar Mantri got associated with Akhil Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad and Akhil Bharatiya Jana Sangh in 1970. Jana Sangh's campaigns during my student days paved the way in my life to live on clear nationalist principles at the ideological and intellectual level. In the 1972 Lok Sabha and Assembly elections in West Bengal he played an active role as an activist. During the emergency he was beaten up arrested and imprisoned for 6 months for actively agitating on the streets of Calcutta. He played an important role in ensuring the five consecutive victories for BJP in the Kolkata Municipal Corporation Ward-22 in the Bengal Assembly and Lok Sabha elections. As an active worker of Bharatiya Janata Party he has successfully fulfilled many responsibilities including the Kolkata Ward-22 Mandal President State Yuva Morcha Vice President

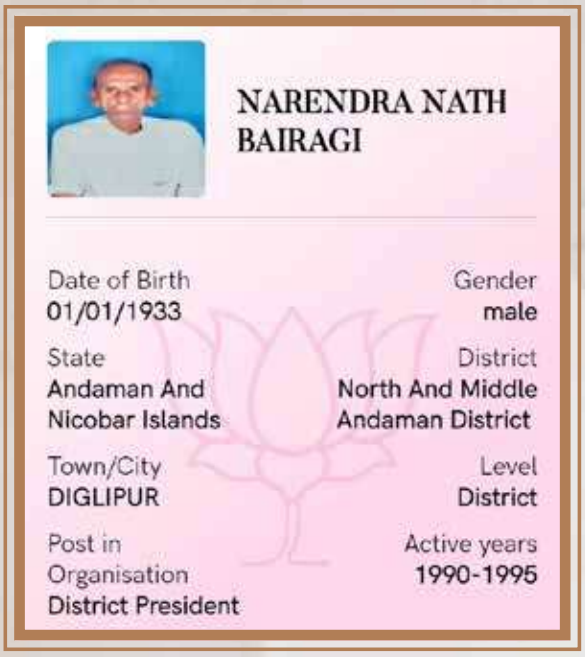
HARINARAYAN ARORA
1999-2004
South Andaman District
Port Blair
State President

Shri Harinarayan Arora, a Swayamsevak from Port Blair, was instrumental in establishing the Hindi Sahitya Kala Parishad in 1962. He promoted Hindi classes, and annual Hindi fortnight by getting annual grants from the administration. He also organized several events to promote Hindi throughout the entire A & N Islands.

In 1975, Shri Harinarayan Arora was at the forefront of establishing the Vishwa Hindu Parishad in these islands. Due to his devotion, a branch of V.H.P. was opened at Port Blair for the propagation of Hindu Culture and unity amongst all Hindus on the basis of Hindu philosophy and values. He has also been the President of the Parishad for about six years. Shri Harinarayan Arora was always ahead in social services and providing help to the poor and needy.

REBATI BISWAS
2013-2014
North And Middle Andaman District
DIGLIPUR
State President

Shri Rebati Biswas was born in Bangladesh's Faridpur district, but later moved to Diglipur village in Andaman. At a very young age of 21, Biswas ji became the disciple of Gopal ji Maharaj and grew more closer to Hinduism. Biswas ji was deeply inspired by the ideology of BJP and joined the party in 1990 under the leadership of Shri Bishnu Pada. Single-handedly, he established BJP in Diglipur, the northernmost island of the country. By traveling to remote areas, he made people aware of BJP, and eventually several people became workers and supporters of the organisation. In 1996, Shri Biswas' tireless efforts helped Shri Bishnu Pada, a BJP candidate, become a member of parliament. As President of Kisan Morcha in 2013, he fought to make sure Diglipur farmers received fertiliser on time. In addition, he suggested building a dam on the Kalpong river to provide irrigation throughout the year. Rebati Biswas was appointed as the National Executive Member of the party. In 2005, he was also elected as a member to the Panchayat Samiti under Diglipur Gram Panchayat, but he preferred to work for the party.



NARENDRA NATH BAIRAGI
1990-1995
North And Middle Andaman District
DIGLIPUR
District President

Originally from Bangladesh, Shri Narendra Nath Bairagi came to Andaman to seek asylum. As a prominent social worker in his village, he constantly helped the poor and downtrodden. Shri Narendra Nath Bairagi ji is one of the founding members of BJP in Andaman & Nicobar Islands in 1990. He was appointed as the District President of the Diglipur Organisational District. In those days, the Congress party ruled from the Panchayat to the Parliament, and nobody had the nerve to challenge the congress in a place like the A & N Islands because of their dictatorial and arrogant control. The leaders and members of the Congress party made numerous threats against Bairagi ji's life and subjected him to social and political discrimination. However, he continued to work towards strengthening BJP over the entire North Andaman region. Narendra Nath ji's effective working style & field activities nurtured BJP and inspired thousands of people of that region to join the party which started paying dividends over the years. Due to his efforts together with the team he had built over the years, the BJP succeeded in winning 14 out of 15 Panchayats in Diglipur in the year 2015.

A K LINGAVELU
1990-1996
South Andaman District
Port Blair
State President

Late. A. K. Lingavelu came to Andaman & Nicobar islands at the age of 12 in 1939 in search of livelihood where he started working at the shop owned by his uncle in Port Blair. He was drawn to the Hindutva ideology and started associating himself with Viswa Hindu Parishad.

There was a time when nobody was ready to lead BJP in Andaman & Nicobar Islands because of Congress' fear. Late. A. K. Lingavelu mustered the courage to assume charge as the Founder-President of the BJP in the year 1990. He faced many hurdles, intimidation and indirect threats from dominant Congress party. However, A.K. Lingavelu ji continued working towards fortifying BJP in the Andamans.

Shri R Mohan Rao came in contact with RSS while working as a small businessman in Andaman & Nicobar. He used to visit Sangh branches regularly and got inspired by the ideology of BJP and became its member in Andaman and Nicobar. Mohan ji served in many positions in the party and became President of Bharatiya Janata Yuva Morcha. Participating in the movements against the wrong policies and decisions of the Congress party, he made significant contributions to the party, bringing many youngsters on board. To establish BJP in the isolated island of Campbell Bay, Mohan ji travelled with the founding member and three-term MP, Hon'ble Bishnu Pada Ray ji, holding meetings in temples and also spending the night there itself. With time, people began to join and make arrangements for their meals and stay at their homes. Workers got involved this way, leading to the formation of the caravan. Mohan ji also played an active role in collecting the iron for the construction of statue of Sardar Patel ji. His presence was always a source of inspiration and motivation to the youth and to the party workers throughout the islands.

Padma Prof. Devendra Rahinwal joined RSS in his childhood and played an important role in the Hindi movement. When the Azad Hind Fauj trial was going on and raising the slogan of 'Jai Hind' was banned, then he publicized the salutation of Jai Hind for which he had to suffer. He was elected as the National General Secretary of the International Hindi Parliament and the President of the District Child Welfare Council. He did not give up the cause of nationalism even after losing a leg in an accident while going to a regional conference of Jana Sangh. After being bedridden for months, he started working with a wooden leg and took a pledge to serve the handicapped. For his service to the differently-abled he received a National Award by the then President Abdul Kalam. He was nominated as the President of the National Institute of Disability Development, Uttarakhand. He was also decorated with the post of State General Secretary by Deendayal Upadhyay Seva Pratishthan and Bharat Vikas Parishad. After the formation of BJP, he was made the President of the Media and Publications Cell and the Chief Editor of the BJP Uttaranchal Patrika. He was awarded the Padma Shri posthumously in 2007.

गोपी कृष्ण कुंवर, लोहरदगा

लोहरदगा लोकसभा क्षेत्र से कई दिग्गज चुनाव लड़े और दिल्ली जाकर यहां का प्रतिनिधित्व किया. इस संसदीय सीट को कांग्रेस का गढ़ माना जाता है. वर्ष 1991 में राजनीति के संत कहे जानेवाले ललित उरांव ने कांग्रेस के गढ़ में पहली बार सेंध लगायी. लोहरदगा संसदीय सीट पर कांग्रेस का वर्चस्व 34 साल बाद समाप्त हुआ. इसके लिए भाजपा के दिग्गज नेताओं को जोर आजमाइश करनी पड़ी थी. भाजपा के अटल बिहारी वाजपेयी, लाल कृष्ण आडवाणी और कैलाशपति मिश्र सरीके नेताओं को लोहरदगा की गलियों की खाक भी छाननी पड़ी थी. इसका नतीजा सकारात्मक मिला और वर्ष 1996 में जनता ने दोबारा इस सीट से भाजापा के ललित उरांव को जिताया.

वर्ष 1967 में कांग्रेस पार्टी के कार्तिक उरांव चुनाव जीते. उनके निधन के बाद उनकी धर्मपत्नी सुमति उरांव ने चुनाव में जीत हासिल की. लोहरदगा से लालू उरांव, इंद्रनाथ भगत, दुखा भगत, डॉ रामेश्वर उरांव एवं सुदर्शन भगत ने चुनाव जीत कर संसद में यहां का प्रतिनिधित्व किया. इस सीट पर चमरा लिंडा, रमा खलखो, डॉ देवशरण भगत, बहुरा एक्का ने भी किस्मत आजमायी, पर जीत नहीं हासिल कर पाये.

लोहरदगा लोकसभा क्षेत्र अनुसूचित जनजाति के लिए आरक्षित है. पिछले लोकसभा चुनाव में भाजपा के विजयी प्रत्याशी सुदर्शन भगत को एक लाख 44 हजार 605 वोट मिले थे. जबकि दूसरे स्थान पर रहनेवाले चमरा लिंडा को एक लाख 36 हजार 344 वोट मिले थे. कांग्रेस प्रत्याशी डॉ रामेश्वर उरांव तीसरे स्थान पर रहे. इन्हें एक लाख 29 हजार 610 वोट मिले. चौथे स्थान पर रमा खलखो रहीं, जिन्हें 32 हजार 219 वोट मिले. आजसू पार्टी के डॉ देवशरण भगत 16 हजार 612 वोट के साथ पांचवें स्थान पर रहे. जेवीएम के डॉ बहुरा एक्का 14 हजार 798 वोटों के साथ छठे स्थान पर रहे. चमरा लिंडा को मिले वोट ने दोनों प्रमुख राजनीतिक दल (कांग्रेस और भाजपा) की नींद उड़ा दी थी. कांग्रेस पार्टी को सबसे ज्यादा नुकसान हुआ था. चूंकि वर्ष 2004 में इस सीट से कांग्रेस पार्टी के डॉ रामेश्वर उरांव चुनाव जीते और 2009 में वे तीसरे स्थान पर चले गये.

पांचों विधानसभा हैं आरक्षित

राज्य के 14 लोकसभा क्षेत्रों में से लोहरदगा इकलौता संसदीय क्षेत्र है, जहां की सभी विधानसभा सीटें अनुसूचित जनजाति के लिए आरक्षित है. यह संसदीय सीट भी अनुसूचित जनजाति के लिए आरक्षित है. इस लोकसभा क्षेत्र में लोहरदगा, गुमला, विशुनपुर, सिसई और मांडर विधानसभा क्षेत्र आते हैं.

छठी लोकसभा में चुने गये सांसद से आज के नेताओं को लेनी चाहिए प्रेरणा

बटेश्वर की ईमानदारी के चर्चे दिल्ली तक

प्रभात विशेष

आनंद अग्रवाल, दुमका

पूर्व सांसद बटेश्वर हेंब्रम की ईमानदारी की मिसाल पर आज भी उन्हें जानने-पहचानने वाले फख्र महसूस करते हैं. बटेश्वर हेंब्रम छठी लोकसभा में सांसद चुने गये थे. तब बटेश्वर सरकारी स्कूल में शिक्षक हुआ करते थे. हिंदी, संताली और संस्कृत से एमए की डिग्री हासिल करने वाले बटेश्वर शिक्षण पेशे से संतुष्ट थे, पर उनकी ईमानदारी तथा समाज के प्रति उनकी सोच-चाहना को देख उनके कुछ मित्रों ने राजनीति के क्षेत्र में जाने को प्रेरित किया. चुनाव लड़े, तो सांसद भी बने. संसद पहुंच कर जनता की आवाज उठायी. सदन में आदिवासियों के मुद्दे उठाये. सांसद के तौर पर उन्हें रेलवे बोर्ड का सदस्य भी बनाया गया था. कई लोगों ने उन्हें 'दौलत-शौहरत' के ऑफर भी दिये पर उन्होंने इसे हमेशा ठुकराया.

ईमान के साथ विश्वास खो रहे हैं नेता

बटेश्वर कहते हैं कि वे आज भी अपनी परिस्थिति और स्थिति से खुश हैं. दुखी नहीं. आज राजनीति जितनी गंदी हो चुकी है, उसके लिए राजनेता जिम्मेदार हैं. ईमान ही नहीं जनता का विश्वास भी राजनेता खोते जा रहे हैं. भले ही हमने परिवार-बच्चों के लिए पैसे-आराम का साधन नहीं तैयार किया, लेकिन अपने आप में मैं और मेरा परिवार खुश हैं क्योंकि हमारी ईमानदारी की चर्चा दिल्ली तक होती है.

दो पुत्र की हो गयी है असामयिक मौत

पैसा कमाने की चाह से नहीं गया था सदन

बटेश्वर हेंब्रम ने बताया कि वे राजनीति में पैसे कमाने की इच्छा से गये नहीं थे. राजनीति में पहले भी पैसे से हेडमास्टर रह कर भी वेतन के रूप में कम रहे थे. पांच की कमाई करनी रहती. दौलत कमाना रहता, तो सांसद ही नहीं बनता. दूसरा कुछ करता. आदिवासी समाज और क्षेत्र की बात सदन तक पहुंचाने गया था, वह काम हमने किया.

अपने परिवार के साथ सांसद बटेश्वर हेंब्रम.
